

Chapter 1 State and Local Gov

1.1 Everything changed in texas(covid)

- The Texas Department of State Health Services responded to the threat caused by the novel coronavirus by declaring a public health disaster for the first time in almost 100 years
- Life in Texas had been changing rapidly for decades, but the life-threatening coronavirus transformed life for nearly every resident of the state
- Beyond damage to life and health, social and governmental responses to the pandemic devastated the economy, exacerbated political divisions, and unleashed social unrest
- Individuals, private organizations, and government institutions struggled to adjust to the new reality and clashed over the proper balance of liberty, safety, and equality
- these transformations and the way our political system handles them have a significant impact on your life
- State governments arguably have more direct effect on your quality of life than does the national government
- In 2020, the U.S. Census Bureau ranked Texas second largest among the 50 states, with a population over 29 million

1.2 Managing Change: Government, policy, politics in texas

- Restrictions on liberties, such as governmental responses to COVID-19, along with expressions of liberties, such as protests sparked by some instances of police brutality, have inspired passionate disagreement about the proper powers and responsibilities of national, state, and local gov.
- Yet aside from a handful of anarchists (who oppose all governments), there is agreement that society needs rules, or public policies, by which to live
- Making, implementing, and enforcing these policies is the job of government. The government of the state of Texas is a representative democracy or “republic” modeled on the government of the United States
- it incorporates U.S. political principles, such as popular sovereignty, political equality, separation of powers, due process of law, civil rights, and personal liberties
