

Understanding Breast Cancer

The breast

The breast consists of numerous lobules (individual glands). Each lobule has a central milk duct that leads to the nipple. Each duct ends in a small part (alveolus) that produces milk. The alveoli are arranged in a regular pattern. The ducts are surrounded by connective tissue. The breast is supported by the chest wall, the skin, and the pectoral muscles.

Breast cancer is a disease in which abnormal cells in the breast grow out of control. It can spread to other parts of the body. It can become an invasive cancer if it spreads to other parts of the breast.

Breast conservation surgery
