

Autistic Fatigue & Burnout

Coping Strategies

Unmasking

Allowing yourself to act naturally without worrying about your behaviour is an important step to help recovery.

Identify Triggers

Identifying patterns can help you understand what your triggers are. This will give you more control over situations and allow you to put strategies in place.

Rest & Re-charge

Stop and take time to rest to give your body time to recover.

Energy Counting

Plan and organise your activities based on your available energy levels.

Small Changes

- using earplugs to help sensory overload
- practicing meditation
- taking (more) breaks
- finding a quiet place where you can go to recharge when things get a little too much

Surviving Compassion Fatigue Beverly Diane Kyer, 2016-06-26 If you are a Human Service Worker caregiver or you work with at risk populations as a counselor social worker parole officer medical or mental health professional or in any of the dozens of helping professions Surviving Compassion Fatigue Help for those who help others is for you You will learn about one woman's physical and emotional descent due to years of self neglect You will also learn about her recovery as well as how to serve and care for others without forgetting to take care of yourself This book is full of practical wisdom and advice for those in the helping professions and caregivers It tells Beverly's story as well as the stories of others who have neglected their own self care But more than that it educates those in the helping professions and in caregiver roles about the importance of strategies for consistent self care Find out how you may be putting yourself at risk and learn skills techniques and strategies to restore and maintain self regulation physical and emotional wellness and inner calm while still caring for those in need You owe it to yourself About the Author Beverly Kyer has a Master's Degree in Social Work and is a member of the Academy of Certified Social Workers She has postgraduate certificates and over three decades of experience in integrated approach to readjustment counseling post traumatic stress disorder social research for the mentally ill and employee assistance program coordination Beverly was also certified in Toronto Canada at the Traumatology Institute as a Compassion Fatigue Specialist Beverly became a Clinical Social Worker specializing in pediatric oncology PTSD in Vietnam Veterans and Psychiatric Day Hospital Treatment She spent much of her career with the Veteran's Administration Veteran's Outreach Center and Medical Center in The Bronx New York City Beverly also spent more than a decade as a direct care service provider in the foster care system She also spent seven years as an urban high school counselor providing emotional and psychological support for students and staff Two episodes of heart failure led Beverly to make a major downshift in her life by resigning from full time employment joining the self employed and devoting her life to help others who work in highly stressful environments Beverly lectures around the country on compassion fatigue which is sometimes known as secondary or vicarious traumatic stress Beverly has three grown children two sons and an adopted daughter and she lives in Northern California in a quiet cul de sac near the delta Oil painting music movies and good books are among her passions

Occupational stress and joy of animal care professionals in zoos, sanctuaries, farms, shelters and laboratory animal facilities Sally Thompson Iritani, Sabrina Brando, Lynette Arnason Hart, 2023-06-02 Psychological Mechanisms and Mental Health in the Face of Current Conflicts and Crises Hubert Annen, Carl Castro, 2025-10-13 In the past two years humanity has been confronted with unprecedented crises most recently the war in Ukraine The flood of related media reports as well as refugee flows the looming energy shortage and individual fear of expansion of the conflict has forced the war into reality and has been made part of our everyday lives Against this backdrop the psychological impact and implications become apparent At the core of such an event it is members of the armed forces and their families who must find ways to deal with the experiences and their consequences In addition it is also essential to consider the affected population who suffer directly from the war are exposed to propaganda and whose morale willpower and resilience influence the direction in which the conflict develops In this context how the individual deals with such events are of paramount importance For example a certain war fatigue among the population of European countries can lead to a decline in idealistic but also material support These psychological aspects also play a role for members of humanitarian organizations or similar groupings that are involved in a supporting capacity or in conflict management who in turn must face specific mental challenges This raises the fundamental question of how psychological knowledge and respective methods can contribute to preventing and ending such conflicts

Trauma-Informed, Culturally Based Intervention Nimo Bokore,2026-01-01 This book examines war related trauma the impacts of forced migration and the importance of emphasising body brain responses in social work practice The author integrates neuroscience and social work through an innovative approach to better understand the trauma process and survivors healing journeys This approach presents a trauma informed culturally based intervention TICBI model for social workers and other practitioners to implement This book is crucial because the world faces a new level of trauma driven by global conflicts and forced displacement These conflicts most profoundly affect survivors from non Western cultures who often lack adequate support through current social work practices that tend to rely on Western ideas and a one size fits all approach This book provides social workers and other professionals with an innovative way to support refugees and survivors of war The TICBI model introduced by the author will help practitioners address the emotional aftermath of war related trauma intergenerational trauma and the role of culture in both the experience and healing processes Working with survivors of war and forced migration requires integrating neuroscience and social work to understand the impacts of war related trauma and the healing process Using the TICBI model this book not only emphasizes experience but also highlights the vital role of culture in survivors healing journey By emphasising culture alongside neuroscience and social work this model offers a distinctive intervention approach that prioritises localised and needs based support for multicultural and multiethnic refugees seeking services Trauma Informed Culturally Based Intervention Integration of Neuroscience and Social Work in Supporting Refugees aims to assist social workers and clinical practitioners in their work with survivors by providing a step by step guide for intervention Each chapter is designed to deliver actionable insights that practitioners can use as a guide or an additional resource when working with survivors At the end of each chapter readers can reinforce their learning through comprehension questions Graduate students in social work psychology nursing and public health as well as community practitioners will find this book to be an invaluable resource

Utilizing Trauma-informed Supervisory Support to Address Compassion Fatigue Heidi D. Kimmel,2020 The purpose of this dissertation is to explore the relationship between compassion fatigue and trauma informed supervision West 2015 described compassion fatigue as the adverse emotional or behavioral outcomes of assisting a client who is suffering from trauma Compassion fatigue is a workplace problem recognized in human service organizations Components of compassion fatigue are burnout lowered levels of compassion satisfaction and secondary traumatic stress The organizational climate and culture of helping professionals may help alleviate compassion fatigue through support of self care peer support trauma informed supervision support and professional recognition This research project utilized mixed methods to collect data from staff of two mid sized human service agencies to explore the relationship between compassion fatigue and trauma informed supervision Survey s utilized include the Professional Quality of Life Scale ProQOL Version 5 Stamm 2010 to measure compassion fatigue in lower level workers and a researcher developed Trauma informed Supervisory Support survey to measure the knowledge retention and type of trauma informed supervision given by supervisors One focus group with lower level worker participants were held with each agency Social work implications include modifications to current theory practice and or policy Self-help for Trauma Therapists Margaret Pack,2016-07-22 For those offering trauma informed care it can be difficult to maintain wellbeing and a balanced positive outlook when the nature of their job requires frequent engagement with traumatic disclosures Self help for Trauma Therapists A Practitioner s Guide intends to assist human service workers such as those working as therapists social workers and counsellors to maintain their self care and professional effectiveness when working in fields where stress and trauma play a key factor in their everyday working lives Adopting a comprehensive multi layered approach to self care based the book grounds its exploration of practice through researched accounts with experience professionals Including accounts from clinical psychologists therapists counsellors social workers and the friends and family of people in these professions this book creates a narrative on stress and trauma from the human service worker perspective Interwoven with these stories of practice the author includes reflections on her own experiences in practice over the past 25 years with trauma survivors With discussions on risk and resilience compassion fatigue and vicarious traumatization readers are introduced to the theories and practical applications of developing a professional model for maintaining wellbeing and self care in their work Self help for Trauma Therapists A Practitioner s Guide is the first book of its kind to be written solely for human service workers It is essential reading for beginning and more advanced practitioners who are involved in working with trauma and recovery and will also be of interest to supporters of those working in the helping professions Help for the Helper Babette Rothschild,2020-12-04 How empathy can jeopardize a therapist s well being Therapist burnout is a pressing issue and self care is possible only when therapists actively help themselves The authors examine the literature from neurobiology social psychology and folk psychology in order to explain how therapists suffer from an excess of empathy for their clients and then they present strategies for dealing with burnout and stress Compassion Fatigue Charles R. Figley,2013-06-17 First published in 1995 Traumatology or the field of traumatic stress studies has become a dominant focus of interest in the mental health fields only in the past decade Yet the origin of the study of human reactions to traumatic events can be traced to the earliest medical writings in Kunus Pyprus published in 1900 B C in Egypt Many factors account for the recent emergence of this field including a growing awareness of the long term consequences of shocking events Among these consequences are violence toward others extraordinary depression dysfunctional behavior and a plethora of medical maladies associated with emotional stress This is the latest in a series of books that have focused on the immediate and long term consequences of highly stressful events The purposes of the book then are a to introduce the concept of compassion fatigue as a natural and disruptive by product of working with traumatized and troubled clients b to provide a theoretical basis for the assessment and treatment of compassion stress and compassion fatigue c to explain the difference between compassion fatigue and PTSD burnout and countertransference d to identify innovative methods for treating compassion fatigue in therapists and e to suggest methods for preventing compassion fatigue
