Technical Writing

In order to write effectively, we must know the audience. In technical writing, the audience is made of mostly scientists and engineers. Given that, one must write using a scientific method. Some of the rules for writing technically are given below. Another aspect of good technical writing, and writing in general, is format. The general guidelines for formatting are also described.

Organization

A general method for technical writing is:

- (1) introduce what you're going to write about
- (2) write about it
- (3) conclude with a summary of what you wrote

Another way of planning for some concept is to:

- (1) State your objective
- (2) State what you did to reach the objective
- (3) State how you did it
- (4) State why you did it

Organize the paper in terms of ideas, or functionality, or VLSI sub-systems of

For example, break apart a paper

- (1) algorithms
- (2) logic
- (3) BMC, LVS
- (4) simulation, test conditions

Write each section, describe in one per paragraph. First paragraph in algorithms might be to describe the functionality of the circuit. Second paragraph may be the system constraints, and why the one used was chosen.

A another way to organize the paper is by the various charts, plots, tables, and other data. If you have data in the form of various simulations, then one can organize the paper by using a paragraph to describe each of the simulations, and then conclude with what all the simulations have proved.

When writing a new version of the paper, use headers and sub-headers. One can occasionally create a table of contents by organizing the headers appropriately.

Style/Syntax

Write each paragraph, sentences should be kept short. Compound sentences are discouraged for the following reason. While writing, keep in mind that the audience is technical, but is not necessarily familiar with your work. It is a common mistake to assume that everyone else knows what you know. Therefore, long sentences, which are
