Electronic Quills Bertram C. Bruce, Andee Rubin, with contributi Barnhardt and Teachers, 2013-11-05 This volume centers on the words and experiences of teachers and students who used QUILL a software package developed by the authors to aid in writing instruction It looks in detail at the stories of these early users and considers questions relevant for other teachers students researchers and developers of educational innovations Questions posed include What does it mean to develop an environment for literacy in an actual classroom How can a teacher create an environment in which students work together toward meaningful goals How can a teacher promote the rich communication so necessary for developing language What is the role of technology in the practice and development of literacy The examination of the QUILL experiences provides a fuller and more revealing account of what it meant to use QUILL than would have been possible through standard evaluation techniques At the same time the focus on the particulars also finds analogues in analyses of similar pieces of open ended software or educational innovations in general

Using Computers in Teaching Foreign Languages Geoffrey R. Hope, Heimy F. Taylor, James P. Pusack, 1984 From Disk to Hard Copy James Strickland, 1997 From Disk to Hard Copy is written for all middle secondary and postsecondary teachers whatever their level of experience with computers It offers direct simple advice a multitude of suggested strategies and applications and a prospective from which teachers can generate their own ideas and applications

Literacy Online Myron C. Tuman, 1992 In the midst of ideological debates in the 1980s concerning literacy an entirely different kind of revolution in the practice of literacy was occurring Everyone students teachers authors and their readers was starting to use computers to compose texts The very notions of reading and writing were being altered with the use of online library catalogues computer databases and electronic mail With access to laser printing and desktop publishing software writers were also able to control not only what they said but how it looked

Computers and the Teaching of Writing in American Higher Education, 1979-1994
Gail E. Hawisher, 1996 This book is a history composed of histories Its particular focus is the way in which computers entered and changed the field of composition studies a field that defines itself both as a research community and as a community of teachers This may have a somewhat sinister suggestion that technology alone has agency but this history made of histories is not principally about computers It is about people the teachers and scholars who have adapted the computer to their personal and professional purposes From the authors perspectives change in technology drives changes in the ways we live and work and we agents to a degree in control of our own lives use technology to achieve our human purposes REVIEW This book reminds those of us now using computers to teach writing where we have been and it brings those who are just entering the field up to date More important it will inform administrators curriculum specialists and others responsible for implementing the future uses of technology in writing instruction

Computers and Composition The Effect of a Computer-based Writing Program on the Attitudes and Performance of Students Acquiring English as a Second Language
Joanne M. Odenthal, 1992 The Computer, the Writer and the Learner Noel Williams, 2012-12-06 Computers are gradually infiltrating all stages of the writing process Increasingly teachers writers students software developers technical authors and computer scientists need to learn more about the effective use of computers for writing This book discusses how computers can help support writing It explores the issues associated with using computers to train and help writers concentrating on computational and user aspects and reviewing practical economic and institutional issues Noel Williams balances theoretical and practical concerns to meet the needs of researchers and practising trainers of writing There is also a brief evaluation available software products together with advice about the major considerations and pitfalls of working on custom made software The book is based on five years of research by the Communication and Information Research Group CIRG at Sheffield City Polytechnic into the value of computer based approaches to training and helping writers The work was funded and supported by the Training Agency IBM AT T Rolls Royce NAB and GEC The Computer the Writer and the Learner is for people who are using or are thinking of using computers to teach or support writing and for designers of computer based writing systems Many such people are unaware of the nature and use of existing systems and of the possibilities they offer Developers often lack detailed knowledge of other projects and of the range of users needs Although the bias of the book is towards the teacher trainer and student most of the content deals with issues that developers will want to know about
