

A transformative public sector is a critical cog in promoting sustainable development. Drawing from a wide array of experienced researchers, academics and practitioners in the field of public governance and management, Zimbabwe in Transition Towards Transformative and Sustainable Public Governance and Management offers evidence-informed insights into the structural and situational factors that are critical in orienting the public sector to the national development agenda anchored on attaining a middle-income economy ranking. These efforts are taken at a time when the global public administration discourse is shifting towards 'new public governance' precepts anchored on open government, network governance, co-production, and public value promotion. The book views Zimbabwe's transitional period as a new 'window' on the political, administrative, legal, and bureaucratic arenas to rethink the existing approaches and leverage Zimbabwe's development agenda which is primarily premised on re-engagement. This intellectual climate informs the discussions in the three chapters of literature.

Among the pressing, transnational national questions which the book is seized with, are: What governance instruments should be adopted to create an enabling business policy environment in line with the re-engagement and open-to-business drive of the nation? What legal frameworks does transitional Zimbabwe need to support the national development agenda? What architecture of bureaucracy is needed to provide the critically needed policy direction anchored on transformative and sustainable development? How can strategic institutions such as the Zimbabwe Investment Development Agency operate to attract foreign investment capital? What best governance practices should guide state institutions monitoring procurement, corruption, and national peace and reconciliation? How can ICTs and social media platforms be managed to broaden and deepen democracy structural space and practices? The book should engage wide reading among university students, academics and practitioners in the areas of governance, public administration and management, public policy, and development studies.
