Technology At Work:

New Technology @ Work Paul Boreham, Rachel Parker, Paul Thompson, Richard Hall, 2007-12-11 A contemporary study of communications technologies and their impacts this book provides an analysis of the forces impacting on the organization of work and evaluates the strategies developed to utilize them in beneficial ways

Designing Technology, Work, Organizations and Vice Versa Enrico Attila Bruni, Laura Lucia Parolin, Cornelius Schubert, 2015-09-01 The concept of design has been defined in a multitude of ways and used in a variety of academic fields ranging from the classics of organizational and system design to studies on corporate culture aesthetics and consumption However in mainstream organization and management studies the concept of design has been black boxed and easily implied as an updated and more fashionable version of the traditional idea of structuring organizational processes At the same time working and organizing seem to be embedded nowadays in increasingly complex and situated technologies and practices If the spreading of information and communication technologies ICTs has changed workplaces and even the very meaning of workplace as an area marked by the physical presence of different human actors working and organizing mobilizes the joint action of humans technologies and knowledges The aim of the book is thus to discuss the relations among technologies work and organisations from multiple theoretical perspectives and to engage with questions about design as well as the sociomaterial foundations of working and organising The book focuses on the close study of practices and processes that inextricably link work and organisation to the use of artefacts and technological systems and vice versa exploring by means of different cases of organizational and design research articulations and disarticulations of daily work and design the doing of objects and technologies in everyday organizational life the reconstruction of organizational processes through technological and design practices the relation between learning innovations and technologies in organizational settings The book is addressed to graduate students PhDs scholars and researchers interested in the fields of Organization Studies Science and Technology Studies Sociology and Design as well as to professionals and practitioners interested in new methodological approaches towards the relations between technology work and organization

The Internet in the Workplace Patricia Wallace, 2004-02-02 The capabilities offered by netcentric technologies might seem to eliminate the need for physical workplace altogether but the workplace remains partly because the virtual and in fact the physical appearance of a typical office looks about the same Nevertheless the psychological characteristics of the workplace have changed considerably Workers from the mail room clerk to the CEO are learning new skills to capitalize on the net's power but avoid the egregious blunders that the net so dramatically amplifies In The Internet in the Workplace Wallace shows how netcentric technologies touch every kind of workplace and explores the challenges and dilemmas they create

The Digital Workplace Paul Miller, 2012 Where do you work We may answer this question with a physical location but increasingly that is either only a partial truth impossible to answer or just irrelevant In this fascinating highly personal investigation into work Paul Miller

challenges us rethink how and where we work today Blending his own working career experiences with those of organizations Miller says it is the digital in the workplace that now defines and shapes our working lives Building on compelling stories from well known organizations Miller explains in a powerful narrative how every aspect of work is being transformed This is an essential exploration of modern and future work that we can all relate to personally Addiction disappointment liberation slavery speed The Digital Workplace is a captivating manifesto for work that lingers in the head and the heart Paul Miller is a technology and social entrepreneur He is CEO and Founder of the Digital Workplace Forum and the Intranet Benchmarking Forum and has been at the heart of the work and technology revolution for the last decade He is the host of IBF Live a monthly intranet media show and Executive Producer and host of the annual IBF 24 which features 24 hours of the world s best intranets plus thought provoking discussion on how work is being redesigned through technology He has been featured in the Wall Street Journal and wrote the best selling book Mobilising the Power of What You Know After an early career as a business journalist and speech writer he published the influential WAVE magazine in 1990 and established The Empowerment Group in 1992 pioneering new approaches to communication within major organizations In 1993 he co founded the Ideas Cafe a regular innovation event shaped along social software lines during the early days of the web Paul was one of the leaders of the innovative Fathers and Daughters Weekends He lives in London and has two daughters

Patient Safety Sidney Dekker, 2016-04-19 Increased concern for patient safety has put the issue at the top of the agenda of practitioners hospitals and even governments The risks to patients are many and diverse and the complexity of the healthcare system that delivers them is huge Yet the discourse is often oversimplified and underdeveloped Written from a scientific human factors perspective Technology and the Future of Work Paul S. Adler, 1992 This book brings together a set of essays exploring the implications of new technologies in the workplace The common premise of the contributions is that the effective implementation of automation in manufacturing and engineering operations will typically require a workforce with a higher skill profile Examining the experience of countries in Europe Australia Asia and the U S the book analyzes four themes the new competencies required for effective implementation of new technologies how firms can develop these new competencies the implications of these changes for industrial relations and how firms can weave together business strategy technology strategy and personnel strategy to build competitive advantage with greater rather than lesser skills This argument contradicts the conventional assumption that automation will not only reduce the number of workers required to produce a given product but also require less skilled workers to do so

Technology Manchester (Greater Manchester). College of Science and Technology, 1912 The Machine at Work Keith Grint, Steve Woolgar, 2013-06-28 This highly topical book is a concise and accessible account of the relationship between technology and work Firstly it reviews and critically assesses a variety of recent approaches to the social and cultural dimensions of technology Secondly it examines the implications of these new approaches for existing ideas about the nature of technology and work organization At the core of much thinking about technology is the assumption that the technical character and capacity of artefacts is given The enduring image of deus ex machina captures the idea that it is the essential capacity within a technology which in the end accounts for the way we organize ourselves our work and other life experiences Recent work in the sociology of technology by contrast sets out relativist and constructivist accounts of technology which begin to challenge this central assumption The Machine at Work includes a reinterpretation of the Luddites a review of the social processes of development in information technology a reassessment of theories of the role of technology in work and an analysis of the common limitations of some constructivist and feminist perspectives on technology The book argues that only a commitment to a particular conception of constructivism enables the kind of radical rethinking about technology and work relations that is needed This engaging and informative text will be of interest to students in a range of subject areas from sociology organizational theory and behaviour to industrial relations management and business studies

Technology's War Record Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Alumni Association. War records committee, 1920 This book was written to document the part played by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology its staff its former students and its undergraduates Tales of skill self sacrifice and courage displayed by Tech men are preserved as an inspiration to their comrades and descendants Attention is directed to the fact that such an institution as Technology is not only a valuable auxiliary in developing commerce and industry in time of peace but that in time of national emergency it becomes an indispensable part of the Nation's military organization

Oil Field Engineering, 1923

People and Technology in the Workplace National Research Council, National Academy of Engineering, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, 1991-02-01 Quick introduction of new technology is essential to America's competitiveness But the success of new systems depends on their acceptance by the people who will use them This new volume presents practical information for managers trying to meld the best in human and technological resources The volume identifies factors that are critical to successful technology introduction and examines why America lags behind many other countries in this effort Case studies document successful transitions to new systems and procedures in manufacturing medical technology and office automation ranging from the Boeing Company's program to involve employees in decision making and process design to the introduction of alternative work schedules for Mayo Clinic nurses This volume will be a practical resource for managers researchers faculty and students in the fields of industry engineering design human resources labor relations sociology and organizational behavior

New Technology @ Work Paul Boreham, Rachel Parker, Paul Thompson, Richard Hall, 2007-12-11 New computer and communications technologies have acted as the catalyst for a revolution in the way goods are produced and services delivered leading to profound changes in the way work is organized and the way jobs are designed This important book examines the nature setting and impact of new technologies on work organization and management Conventional debates about new technology often invoke optimistic visions of enhanced democracy rising skills and economic abundance others predict darker scenarios such as the destruction of jobs through labour eliminating devices This book proposes an alternative perspective arguing that technology can be powerful but in and of itself has no independent causal powers It considers the impact of new technologies on manufacturing clerical administrative and call centre employment in both managerial and professional arenas and introduces the growing phenomena of telework The book also assesses the important political and economic forces that restrict or facilitate the flow of new technologies on national and global levels New Technology Work is an illuminating and thought provoking text that will prove invaluable to all serious students of business management and technology
