Village That Chose Progress Chan Kom Rev:

Robert Redfield and the Development of American Anthropology Clifford Wilcox, 2006-01-01 Relying upon close readings of virtually all of his published and unpublished writings as well as extensive interviews with former colleagues and students Robert Redfield and the Development of American Anthropology traces the development of Robert Redfield's ideas regarding social change and the role of social science in American society Clifford Wilcox's exploration of Redfield's pioneering efforts to develop an empirically based model of the transformation of village societies into towns and cities is intended to recapture the questions that drove early development of modernization theory Reconsideration of these debates will enrich contemporary thinking regarding the history of American anthropology and international development Indian Village S.C. Dube, 2012-11-12 Published in 1998 Indian Village is a valuable contribution to the field of Sociology Social Policy

Transforming Qualitative Data Harry F. Wolcott, 1994-02-18 The process of analyzing qualitative data and producing a complete study is discussed in this book Breaking down the transformation process into description analysis and interpretation Harry Wolcott discusses these three related activities To illustrate them he critically analyzes his own work using nine of his previous studies as examples He concludes by examining how to learn and teach qualitative research using these principles American Sociological Review, 1952-02 Culture, Environment and Health in the Yucatan Peninsula Hugo Azcorra, Federico Dickinson, 2019-12-11 This book adopts a human ecology approach to present an overview of the biological responses to social political economic cultural and environmental changes that affected human populations in the Yucatan Peninsula Mexico since the Classic Maya Period Human bodies express social relations and we can read these relations by analyzing biological tissues or systems and by measuring certain phenotypical traits at the population level Departing from this theoretical premise the contributors to this volume analyze the interactions between ecosystems sociocultural systems and human biology in a specific geographic region to show how changes in sociocultural and natural environment affect the health of a population over time This edited volume brings together contributions from a range of different scientific disciplines such as biological anthropology bioarchaeology human biology nutrition epidemiology ecotoxicology political economy sociology and ecology that analyze the interactions between culture environment and health in different domains of human life such as The political ecology of food nutrition and health Impacts of social and economic changes in children's diet and women's fertility Biological consequences of social vulnerability in urban areas Impacts of toxic contamination of natural resources on human health Ecological and sociocultural determinants of infectious diseases Culture Environment and Health in the Yucatan Peninsula A Human Ecology Perspective will be of interest to researchers from the social health and life sciences dedicated to the study of the interactions between natural environments human biology health and social issues especially in fields such as biological and sociocultural anthropology health promotion and environmental health It will also be a useful tool to health professionals and public agents responsible for designing and applying public health policies in contexts of social vulnerability A Triangulation on the Culture of Mexico Munro S. Edmonson,1957 The Culture of Security in San Carlos John Philip Gillin,1951 Mexico Robert E. Quirk,1971 Mexico s early history is marked by violent rebellion social upheaval and meagre progress By contrast twentieth century Mexico has successfully embarked on a path of peaceful revolution which has the Gross National Product as its hero instead of the traditional villa of zapata This is an account of Mexico s often stormy growth from semifeudal states to a modern united nation The Second Sowing: Power and Secondary Development in Latin America Richard Newbold Adams,1967 Social research study of some features of leadership and behaviourism towards social change and economic development in Latin America covers cultural factors social structures cultivation techniques industrialization educational and cultural changes family organisation community relations government and political leadership the role of the Church and of the armed forces etc Bibliography pp 273 to 281 Cultural Anthropology: Its Dimensions, Its Limitations, Its Applications Mario D. Zamora,1972 Tzintzuntzan; Mexican Peasants in a Changing World George McClelland Foster,1967 Foster s work is synonymous with the very best in anthropological scholarship His study of Tzintzuntzan has long been a classic in the study of peasant communities but the present version is even more noteworthy because Foster has been able to offer a meaningful documentation of change and modernization in this community that spans more than four decades of careful and repeated observation and study Catalog of the Latin American Collection University of Texas at Austin.
