Weed Science In The Tropics:

Weed Science in the Tropics I. Okezie Akobundu, Weed Science in the Tropics I. Okezie Akobundu, 1987 Excessive weed growth is one of the most serious problems facing farmers throughout the tropics There is a need for professionally trained weed scientists to become involved in research at the highest level where existing technologies can be further developed and new ones generated Proceedings of Weed Science in the Tropics Rosli Mohamad, Rajan Amartalingam, 1986 Modern Weed Science- in the Tropics O.P. Gupta, 1978 Modern Weed Science in the Tropics and Sub-tropics Om Prakash Gupta, P. S. Lamba, 1978 About weeds Weed prevention and control principles and practices Herbicide chemistry and action Weed control recommendations Weed Biology and Management Inderjit, 2013-11-11 Weeds hold an enigmatic and sometimes controversial place in agriculture where they are generally reviled grudgingly tolerated and occasionally admired In most cases growers make considerable effort to reduce the negative economic impact of weeds because they compete with crops for resources and hinder field operations thereby affecting crop productivity and quality and ultimately the sustainability of agriculture Weed control in production agriculture is commonly achieved through the integration of chemical biological and mechanical management methods Chemicals herbicides usually inhibit the growth and establishment of weed plants by interfering with various physiological and biochemical pathways Biological methods include crop competition smother crops rotation crops and allelopathy as well as specific insect predators and plant pathogens Mechanical methods encompass an array of tools from short handled hoes to sophisticated video guided robotic machines Integrating these technologies in order to relieve the negative impacts of weeds on crop production in a way that allows growers to optimize profits and preserve human health and the environment is the science of weed management

J. van Rijn, 2000 The abundant weed growth in the humid and sub humid tropics is one of the most serious constraints in producing crops establishing pastures and maintaining water resources This book presents historic and recent data on the biology of weeds and their control within the general context of the husbandry of crops and the management of pastures and aquatic situations The first seven chapters cover the nature of negative values of weeds principles of weed ecology weed control and establishment of farming and cropping systems in tropical regions performance of crops in the tropical ecosystems main weeds in the forest regions and main weeds in the savannah regions Chapter 8 deals with weed control methods in general and chapters 9 to 14 with weed control in various crops Chapter 15 covers weeds and their control in pastures and chapter 16 aquatic weed management Proceedings of a Symposium on No-tillage Crop losses to crop production in the tropics and grassy weeds present a particular problem because of their similarity to cereal crop plants It is therefore difficult to devise control methods and management practices appropriate for such weeds This book reviews our current knowledge of this subject and is the outcome of a workshop on integrated control of grassy weeds in tropical subsistence farming systems held in Nairobi in February 1990 The workshop was organised by CASAFA Commission on the Application of Science to Agriculture Forestry and Aquaculture of the International Council of Scientific Unions The contents include a general review of grassy weeds their physiology in tropical agriculture management by crops in mixed crops and in upland rice and overviews of grassy weeds in Kenya the Phillipines and Australia
