Teaching For Competence:

Teaching for Competence Howard J. Sullivan, Norman Higgins, 1983 The Politics of Competence John Merrow, 1975

The extent to which we are being shaped by the competency based concept in the training and licensing of teachers is the topic of this volume. The central statement in The Politics of Competence: A Review of Competency Based Teacher Education provides a review and interpretation of activity nationally. The importance of this activity can be underscored by the estimate that hundreds of thousands of educator person years are being consumed by this movement. This statement is followed by a series of perspectives by people who either helped shape the competency based concept or who are now responding to the concept's shaping force. The general purpose of the National Institute of Education in publishing a volume such as this one is to raise the level of public debate on contemporary issues in education. To this end, the format followed is to review and interpret a national activity followed by perspectives from major interested parties.

Residents, A Teaching Skills
Janine C. Edwards, Joan A. Friedland, Robert Bing-You, 2002. The editors have collected an impressive array of practical material that will guide any academic medical center in the development of a more focused approach to teaching the teachers. From learning theory and program development to teaching performance evaluation and specialty specific materials, Residents Teaching Skills covers all the bases. I commend this volume to the attention of medical educators everywhere and residency program directors in particular. Foreword by Jordon J Cohen MD, President Association of American Medical Colleges. This book provides practical guidance to plan, organize, and run a teaching skills program for medical residents. Readers will find that Part Two offers exact materials for course use, including modules for use with pediatric residents, teaching clinical procedures, works rounds, and role play, plus evaluation forms that can be used as written or customized to fit a particular program.

Competence Oriented Teacher Training, 2006-01-01. Internationally leading experts from four continents provide new views and pathways to teacher education and training. How can teachers be effectively and efficiently trained to master the complexity and the process conditions of teaching learning situations? The chapters as a whole demonstrate that subtle knowledge of the conditions and variables of instructional processes is necessary. They provide new insight into the classroom. But the chapters also stress the necessity of reflection. Teachers have to learn how to judge and justify that knowledge and its use. Reflective behaviour thus seems as the overall goal of teacher education and training. The authors are aware that this goal might be classified as idealistic and present therefore complex examples for successful conducting instructional processes. They open the view on hidden or neglected dimensions of teaching and learning, discuss standards for teacher behaviour, present critical situations together with possible solutions, and give hints for the use of technology. Together these chapters present new perspectives for successful teacher actions and the corresponding preparation for successful instruction.

Preparing for College and University Teaching Joanna Gilmore, Molly Hatcher, 2021 This book is a guide for designing professional development programs for graduate students The teaching competencies framework presented here can serve as the intended curriculum for such programs The book will also be an excellent resource for evaluating programs and will be an excellent resource for academics who study graduate students This book presents the work of the Graduate Teaching Competencies Consortium to identify organize and clarify the competencies that graduate students need to teach effectively when they join the professoriate To achieve this goal the Consortium developed a framework of 10 teaching competencies organized around three overarching questions What do graduate students need to achieve by the end of their graduate education to be successful teacher scholars What do graduate students need to understand about higher education to have successful careers as educators What do graduate students need to do to be successful teachers during their graduate student careers Although much work has been done to identify the competencies of effective teachers in higher education only a small portion of this work has been conducted with graduate student instructors This is an important area of research given that graduate students are critical in the higher education academic pipeline Nationally graduate students teach between 25% and 50% of courses offered at the undergraduate level Graduate student teaching is also critical because during early teaching experiences teachers establish a teaching style and set of teaching skills which will endure as graduate students enter the professoriate It is important to develop a teaching competency framework that is specific to graduate student instructors as they often have unique needs and roles as teachers For example graduate student instructors are in the unique position of becoming experts in their field concurrent with learning to teach Moreover as many professional development programs for graduate student instructors evolve based upon factors such as available resources and perceived needs of graduate students this framework will be a useful aid for thoughtfully designing strategic evidence based comprehensive professional development opportunities and programs
