The Classical Man:

The Classical World, 1914 The Geschlecht Complex Oscar Jansson, David LaRocca, 2022-01-13 The polysemous German word Geschlecht denoting gender, genre, kind, kinship, species, race, and somehow also more, exemplifies the most pertinent questions of the translational, transdisciplinary, transhistorical, and transnational structures of the contemporary humanities. What happens when texts, objects, practices, and concepts are transferred or displaced from one language, tradition, temporality, or form to another? What is readily transposed, what resists relocation, and what precipitates as distorted or new? Drawing on Barbara Cassin's transformative remarks on untranslatability and the activity of philosophizing in languages, scholars contributing to The Geschlecht Complex examine these and other durable queries concerning the ontological powers of naming and do so in the light of recent artistic practices, theoretical innovations, and philosophical incitements. Combining detailed case studies of concrete category problems in literature, philosophy, media, cinema, politics, painting, theatre, and the performing arts with a range of indispensable excerpts from canonical texts by notable field-defining thinkers such as Apter, Cassin, Cavell, Derrida, Irigaray, Malabou, and Nancy among others, the volume presents the Geschlecht complex as a condition to become aware of and in turn to companionably underwrite any interpretive endeavor. Historically grounded yet attuned to the particularities of the present, the Geschlecht complex becomes an invaluable mode for thinking and theorizing while ensconced in the urgent immediacy of pressing concerns and poised for the inevitable complexities of categorial naming and genre discernment that await in the so often inscrutable, translation-resistant twenty-first century.

Intrinsic Sustainable Development: Epistemes, Science, Business And Sustainability Frank Birkin, Thomas Polesie, 2011-12-27 Sustainable development sets the agenda for the 21st century Human technological capability and needs mean that nature is and will be challenged and damaged in many ways Whilst many social and technological innovations are being made to improve our survival prospects they are likely to be insufficient to avoid continued social and ecological stress and the prospect of global tension if significant changes do not come about The ideas in this book offer a new solution to sustainable development problems They are concerned not with what we know but how we know or rather how we order knowledge and create understanding in the human world This book shows that some of the fundamental practices that shape modern society especially in the business world are the unwitting cause of unsustainable development By extrapolating the epistemic analysis of Michel Foucault a major social scientist this book identifies a new episteme It outlines a new way of ordering knowledge that better serves sustainable development This pioneering book synthesizes the sciences of human and natural worlds and applies the findings to the creation of sustainable business models and equitable lifestyles for all
