Toward Competition In Local Telephony:

Toward Competition in Local Telephony William J. Baumol, J. Gregory Sidak, 1994-03 This book discusses local competition in the telecommunications sector Telephony, 1929 Telephony, 1986-03 Competitive Debacle in Local Telephony Reza Dibadj, 2009 This article challenges the conventional wisdom that the Telecommunications Act of 1996 is to blame for the lack of competition in local telephony and that somehow the federal courts are complicit in this failure It begins by highlighting the continued importance of local wireline infrastructure and how little competition exists Moving to the 1996 Act's network disaggregation provisions the article argues that while the statute itself is sound the regulations promulgated under it evince basic economic confusion that has harmed not only the incumbent telephone companies but ironically the new competitors whom the regulations were designed to help A new regulatory approach is proposed to overcome the current impasse The piece next considers provisions to open long distance to local telephone monopolies and finds again that implementing regulations not the Act itself is to blame A new regulatory paradigm is offered Finally the argument shifts to the thorny issue of federalism to find that Congress in fact devised a rather elegant and innovative new scheme that has been misunderstood The article parts company with most critical commentary to suggest that tossing out the 1996 Act is altogether too draconian rather the focus of regulatory reform should be to develop regulations that coincide with economic reality Governance in "Cyberspace": Access and Public Interest in Global Communications Klaus Grewlich, 1999-11-09 Cyberspace is the emerging invisible intangible world of electronic information and processes stored at multiple interconnected sites The digital revolution leads to convergence of telecommunications computer Internet and broadcasting and to dynamic multimedia value chains Deregulation and competition are major driving forces in the new interactive electronic environment This volume contains normative proposals for cyber regulation including self regulation grounded on developments in the EU US and the Far East in international organisations WTO OECD WIPO ITU in business fora in NGOs in the Internet community and in academic research The multi actor government business civil society and multi level analysis subsidiarity pertains e.g. to ex ante and ex post access regulation competition network economics external effects essential facilities public interest principles human dignity free speech privacy security development and culture consumer protection cryptography domain names and copyright Lawyers regulators business executives investment bankers diplomats and civil society representatives need shared essentials of plurilateral governance to safeguard both competition and public interest objectives at a scale congruent to cyberspace in the transition to an international law of cooperation Making Universal Service Policy Barbara A. Cherry, Steven S. Wildman, Allen S. Hammond, IV, Allen S. Hammond, 1999-08 This volume presents the current state of universal service policy from governmental academic and industry perspectives It will be of great use to those involved in communication policy including lawyers economists policy makers and scholars Review of Austrian Economics, Volume 9 Murray Rothbard, 2009 Commentaries, 1990 Competition and

Technical Change in the U.S. Telephone Industry Nakil Sung, 1997 One of the most important public policy questions in the enactment of the U S Communication Act of 1996 was whether to allow competition in the local and regional telephone markets While competition in the long distance telephone market introduced in the 1960s is flourishing local telephone companies including Baby Bells still maintain their monopoly position but rapid technological advances in telecommunications are eroding the established market structure From the viewpoint of economies the transition to competitive local and regional telephone markets may be justified only if local telephone companies are not natural monopolies and if local telephone companies productivity growth is poorer than that of their competitors This study presents new pro competitive evidence on the cost structure of local and regional telephone markets and shows a markedly faster growth in productivity of a competitive long distance telephone company than of local telephone monopolies This book presents two types of analyses measurement of total factor productivity TFP growth and the estimation of various cost functions By considering competitiveness in both analyses the effect of competition on cost decline or productivity growth is traced and the relationship between competition and natural monopoly is examined The author also revives arguments for embodied technical change which have been ignored in economic literature for a decade Report from the Select Committee on Post Office (Telephone Agreement), 1905 Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Select committee on Post office (Telephone agreement) 1905, Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Select Committee on Post Office (Telephone Agreement), 1905 Public Policy Toward Cable Television Thomas W. Hazlett, Matthew Laurence Spitzer, 1997 This study of cable rate regulation finds that unregulated monopoly may be superior to regulate monopoly even in the presence of legal entry barriers By comparing how rates quality and volume changed during the periods of deregulation and reregulation in the cable industry the authors show that cable rate regulation deals with a real problem monopoly power in local cable markets but has typically proven perverse in effect Encyclopaedia Britannica, 1929 YALE JOURNAL ON REGULATION VOL. 11 NO. 1, 1994 S. 1086, the Telecommunications Infrastructure Act of 1993 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation. Subcommittee on Communications, 1994 Distributed to some depository libraries in microfiche New York Review of the Telegraph and Telephone and Electrical Journal, 1903 The American Telephone Journal, 1906 The American Enterprise, 1998 California Law Review, 1993 Asian Law Journal, 1993 Economic Regulation Paul L. Joskow, 2000 Beyond the New Public Management is an important book which provides a comprehensive analysis of current conceptual debates in public management and governance and critically reviews attempts made over the last two decades to apply the new public management model in developed and developing countries
