Writing for publication: a practical guide

Happell B (2008) Writing for publication: a practical guide. Nursing Standard, 22, 28, 35-40.
Date of acceptance: June 11 2007.

Summary

Nurses in clinical practice tend not to view writing for publication as part of their role, and often fail to recognise the value of written communication as a means of sharing valuable knowledge and expertise with others. The tendency to view writing for publication as an arduous and daunting task, reserved only for those in academia, may deter the novice writer. This article aims to encourage nurses in clinical practice to consider writing for publication and actively contribute to professional development through the dissemination of nursing knowledge. The article also provides a practical guide for writing a research and quality improvement article.

Author

Brenda Happell is professor of contemporary nursing, Department of Health Innovation, and co-ordinator, mental and psychosocial health, Central Queensland University (CQU) Healthy Communities, CQU, Australia. Email: b.happell@cqu.edu.au

Keywords

Knowledge dissemination; Shared expertise; Written communication

These keywords are based on the subject headings from the British Nursing Index. This article has been subject to double-blind review. THE COMMON USE of the term 'to publish or perish' is generally associated with the imperatives of academic life (Worrall-Carter and Snell 2003, Happell 2005) and may inadvertently deter nurses from writing for publication. The term also projects a sense of urgency and pressure (Schilling 2005). The Australian Government Productivity Commission (2005) highlighted the high workloads experienced by nurses in clinical practice. In light of such work pressures and the view of publication as an academic task, busy nurses may have little time to devote to writing for publication.

The ongoing development and articulation of nursing knowledge rely on a more positive and constructive view of publication. Although there is a tendency in the nursing profession to favour oral communication over the written word (Harley et al 2000, Martin and Street 2003), writing for publication is an important means of communicating knowledge, skills and experience to the wider population and improving outcomes for the recipients of nursing care on a greater scale (Edwards and Valley 2003, Meadows 2004). However, writing for publication can be a daunting task with potential authors being unsure of where or how to start (Happell 2005).

Getting started

Writing for publication can be a rewarding activity. It provides the opportunity for sharing knowledge, skills and experiences with peers, which may ultimately lead to a change in clinical practice. By publishing one's work the opportunity to receive feedback is realised and this may further advance the knowledge and expertise of the writer. Furthermore, seeing one's work in print is a source of great pride and sense of achievement. Some journals pay authors for published work, so there may also be financial rewards. However, the major benefits are associated with the personal and professional development achieved through mastering the skills embodied in writing for publication.

Choosing what to write

The practice of nursing offers many opportunities for research, evaluation and articulation. However,
