Tourism and Economic Development in Asia and Australasia Frank M. Go, Carson L. Jenkins, 1997 Provides a foundation for tourism studies in the Asian and Australasian region      Tourism Places in Asia Alan A. Lew, 2021-05-27 Tourism Places in Asia examines the impacts of tourism on places in East and Southwest Asia. Asia has been the most dynamic region for tourism development in recent decades and tourism research from this region has grown significantly to better understand this phenomenon. The primary focus is on the Chinese realm of mainland China and Taiwan. East Asia has been the most dynamic region for tourism development in the world in recent decades, driven by the growth of both outbound and domestic travel and tourism among mainland Chinese. This reflects the phenomenal change in prosperity that the People's Republic of China has experienced since the 1970s, as well as the human drive to travel and explore their world. Tourism research has also grown significantly in the Asian continent in recent years. Much of this scholarship is focused on developing the Asian economies to move them from their developing world status. Tourism Places in Asia: Destinations, Stakeholders, and Consumption highlights the progress of tourism scholarship in Asia in other areas, especially in the way places are impacted by tourists and the tourism industry. The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of the journal Tourism Geographies.

Responsible Rural Tourism in Asia Vikneswaran Nair, Amran Hamzah, Ghazali Musa, 2020-09-08 The rural tourism sector has become a key driver for social and economic growth and a major source of income for developing and low income countries in many parts of Asia. Rural tourism is progressively viewed as a solution, increasing the economic viability of marginalised areas, stimulating social regeneration and improving the living conditions of rural communities. Responsible rural tourism promotes conservation of the natural environment, protects the authenticity of culture and offers socioeconomic opportunities and benefits for local communities. This book encompasses case studies from a range of Asian countries and examines both successful and failed attempts in developing responsible rural tourism and the learnings that we can adopt and adapt for future responsible rural tourism in the region. It will be of interest to students, researchers, stakeholders and policymakers in tourism.

Tourism Taxation in Asia and the Pacific, 1998 Tourism is seen by governments as an easy sector to tax. Taxation points are readily identified, taxes can be collected by the industry itself and those who are taxed, the tourists, are in transit and are not voters. The objectives of this seminar were to analyse the overall role of taxes in the development of tourism, to review the tax treatment of hotels and other tourist accommodation, tax treatment of transport and tax affecting tour operators and travel agents, to review other types of taxes levied directly on tourists such as exit and entry charges, consumption taxes, environment taxes and duties on the import of equipment, to provide an overview of the growing tax burden on the tourism industry, to discuss direct tourism taxation issues such as the costs of collection, neutrality, equity, economic impact, competition and discrimination, and to reach conclusions and make recommendations focusing on streamlining the tourism taxation structure with a fine balance between revenue generation and safeguarding the long term interests of the industry, leading to the formation of policy guidelines for countries to follow.
