Global Value Chains and Industrial Development Ikuo Kuroiwa, So Umezaki, 2024-03-13 This book aims to investigate the global value chain GVC from a viewpoint of industrial development and examine how GVC participation upgrading and connectivity have affected structural transformation in developing economies It first reviews the indexes to measure progresses in GVC participation and upgrading Then it examines factors affecting these progresses using original measures of connectivity which are computed based on the complex network theory Another distinguished feature of the study is its in depth analyses on the relationship between economic development and GVC participation based on the hypothesis of nonlinear relationship which is drawn from authors past studies on Asian economies Major findings include 1 inverted U shaped relationship between backward participation and income levels 2 U shaped relationship between forward participation and income level 3 marginal but significant impacts of maritime and aviation connectivity on GVC participation 4 significant and different roles of basic and advanced education on the upgrading in GVCs and 5 the importance of technological intensities in export in sustaining economic growth

Pro-Poor Growth and Governance in South Asia Ponna Wignaraja, Susil Sirivardana, 2004-08-19 This is a study of issues in good governance in South Asia viz in the countries of India Pakistan Sri Lanka and Nepal The focus is on the interconnections between governance decentralization of authority and decision making and poverty eradication The book submits a stratagem to turn

South Asia's greatest handicap poverty into a source of strength in which the poor contribute directly to growth. The key to this pro-poor growth strategy according to the authors is community mobilization through social movements and non-governmental development initiatives. The book is divided into three parts: the conceptual framework, illustrative case studies and lessons for macro-microeconomic policy. Part I critically evaluates conventional developmental thinking and suggests the outline of an alternative pro-poor developmental strategy. Part II, the backbone of the volume, is a collection of six case studies from selected locations in South Asia covering both rural and urban experiences. Part III draws lessons from these studies for a value-driven policy with both short-term and long-term implications. The book is a first of its kind, examining in depth issues of vital importance to the development of the South Asian region. The importance of this volume lies in the synthesized lessons for policy and implementation drawn from cases where new ground has been broken in the conceptualization of social mobilization and pro-poor growth. Encyclopaedia of South East and Far East Asia P. Reflections on Development in Southeast Asia Teck Ghee Lim, 1988. The rapid pace of economic development in Southeast Asia has involved a changing and often volatile relationship between traditional structures and values and new structures associated with state and administrative power. In this volume, a variety of original perspectives is offered on crucial subjects including the region, the bureaucracy, the state, and non-governmental organizations. Southeast Asian Development Andrew McGregor, 2008-03-03. Southeast Asia has long fascinated development practitioners and researchers for being one of the few regions of the world that has resisted global trends to become a successful developing region. Divided into accessible thematic chapters, this book adopts a unique perspective of equitable development to outline the strengths and weaknesses of the transformations taking place in the Southeast Asian region. Focusing on four key themes: equality and inequality, political freedom and opportunity, empowerment and participation, and environmental sustainability, these concepts are used to explore Southeast Asian development and trace the impacts that the growing popularity of market-led and grassroots approaches are having upon economic, political, and social processes. Whilst the diversity of the region is emphasized, so are some of the homogenizing trends such as the concentration of wealth and services in urban areas and the subsequent migration of rural people into urban factories and squatter settlements. The ongoing commercialization and industrialization of rural agriculture, as well as the expansion of non-farm income earning opportunities in rural spaces and the alarming rates of environmental degradation which threaten health and livelihoods, are also exposed. In highlighting how Southeast Asian development is unevenly distributing wealth, opportunities, and risks throughout the region, this book emphasizes the need for creative new approaches to ensure that benefits of development are equitably enjoyed by all. Including illustrations, case studies, and further reading, this book provides an accessible, up-to-date introductory text for students and researchers interested in Southeast Asian development, development studies, Asian studies, and geography.
