Writing In Rights:

Writing and Righting Lyndsey Stonebridge, 2020-11-26 A bold and accessible argument for the moral and political value of literature in rightless times The obvious humanity of books would seem to make literature and human rights natural allies But what is the real connection between literature and human rights In this short polemical book Lyndsey Stonebridge shows how the history of human rights owes much to the creative imagining of writers Yet she argues it is not enough to claim that literature is the empathetic wing of the human rights movement At a time when human rights are so blatantly under attack the writers we need how are the political truth-tellers the bold callers out of easy sympathy and comfortable platitudes

Writing Wrongs Pramod K. Nayar, 2014-03-21 This book examines the cultural apparatus of Human Rights in India today It unravels discourses of victimhood oppression suffering and witnessing through a study of autobiographies memoirs reportage and media coverage and documentaries Moving across multiple media and genres for their representations of Dalits riot victims prisoners abused and abandoned women and children examining the formal properties of victim texts for their documentation of trauma and analyzing the role of the sympathetic imagination Writing Wrongs inaugurates a whole new field in literary cultural studies by focusing on the narratives that build the culture of Human Rights It argues for taking this cultural apparatus as essential to the political and legal dimensions of Human Rights The book emphasizes the need for an ethical turn to literary cultural studies and a cultural turn to Human Rights studies arguing that a public culture of Human Rights has a key role to play in revitalizing civil society and its institutions It will be of interest to Human Rights scholars and activists and those in political science sociology literary and cultural studies narrative theory and psychology

Human Rights and Indian Literary Communities Swatie, 2026-03-31 Human Rights and Indian Literary Communities explores the relation between literature the public sphere and the notion of personhood as understood through the concept of human rights in India While discussing the challenges of social equality the universal notion that everyone is a rights bearing person and rule of law in a postcolonial society like India it outlines the historical trajectories geographies and social processes that go into the making of human rights This edited collection presents various interpretations of the concept of literary communities highlighting their indispensable role to the demands of human rights discourse Each chapter analyses narratives as told in various media and environments from the public sphere and the Constitution to archival letters novels poetry and short stories as well as documentary and feature films Contributions from human rights and literary scholars and researchers also adopt an intersectional lens discussing the micro histories of the anti colonial struggle debates within the queer movement and the relationship between religion and rights Wide in scope this book adopts a sharp focus on the capacity of literary communities to collectively equip those with rights with empathy and care By demonstrating how a rights bearing person is written not simply constructed into being this comprehensive text is an ideal resource for researchers of literary legal and postcolonial studies

Writing Human Rights Crystal Parikh, 2017-10-17 The legal texts and aspirational ideals of human rights are usually understood and applied in a global context with little bearing on the legal discourse domestic political struggles or social justice concerns within the United States In Writing Human Rights Crystal Parikh uses the international human rights regime to read works by contemporary American writers of color Toni Morrison Chang rae Lee Ana Castillo Aimee Phan and others to explore the conditions under which new norms more capacious formulations of rights and alternative kinds of political communities emerge Parikh contends that unlike humanitarianism which views its objects as victims human rights provide avenues for the creation of political subjects Pairing the ethical deliberations in such works as Beloved and A Gesture Life with human rights texts like the United Nations Convention Against Torture she considers why principles articulated as rights in international conventions and treaties such as the right to self determination or the right to family are too often disregarded at home Human rights concepts instead provide writers of color with a deeply meaningful method for political and moral imagining in their literature Affiliating transnational works of American literature with decolonization socialist and other political struggles in the global south this book illuminates a human rights critique of idealized American rights and freedoms that have been globalized in the twenty first century In the absence of domestic human rights enforcement these literatures provide a considerable repository for those ways of life and subjects of rights made otherwise impossible in the present antidemocratic moment

Reproductive Rights as Human Rights Zakiya Luna, 2020-09-01 Reveals both the promise and the pitfalls associated with a human rights approach to the women of color focused reproductive rights activism of SisterSong How did reproductive justice defined as the right to have children to not have children and to parent become recognized as a human rights issue In Reproductive Rights as Human Rights Zakiya Luna highlights the often forgotten activism of women of color who are largely responsible for creating what we now know as the modern day reproductive justice movement Focusing on SisterSong an intersectional reproductive justice organization Luna shows how and why women of color mobilized around reproductive rights in the domestic arena She examines their key role in re framing reproductive rights as human rights raising this set of issues as a priority in the United States a country hostile to the concept of human rights at home An indispensable read Reproductive Rights as Human Rights provides a much needed intersectional perspective on the modern day reproductive justice movement

Displacement, Memory, and Travel in Contemporary Migrant Writing Jopi Nyman, 2017-04-18 Displacement Memory and Travel in Contemporary Migrant Writing examines contemporary cultural representations of transforming identities in the era of increasing global mobility It pays particular attention to the ways in which cultural encounters are experienced affectively and discursively in migrant literature Divided into three parts that deal with refugee writing and displacement migration and memory and new European identities the volume develops current methodologies and shows how postcolonial studies can be applied to the study of cultural encounters Writers studied include Sim o Kikamba Ishmael Beah Madhur Jaffrey Diana Abu Jaber Abdulrazak Gurnah Caryl Phillips Jamal Mahjoub and Monica Ali and several refugee writers
