Douglas Berry Copland

Willing Migrants:

Willing Migrants François Manchuelle, 1997 A study of labor migration of the Soninke ethnic group of West Africa Their historical employment in the French merchant marine set the stage for their larger migration to France and today 85% of Black African migrants to France are from this ethnic group Analysis of French precolonial and colonial records and interviews with Soninke migrants show that these migrations were driven by a search for improved economic conditions and have much in common with European and American migrations This conclusion refutes theoretical arguments in Africanist literature that have stressed the role of the colonial state in forcing migration through violence and taxation Paper edition unseens 24 95 Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

Ecological Migration, Development and Transformation Peilin Li, Xiaoyi Wang, 2015-06-05 After over 30 years of reform and opening up China's aggregate economic volume is now the second largest in the world Over the past decade many provinces in the western region of China have implemented ecological migration projects of different scales which have attracted considerable attention both in China and abroad The projects indicate first that there is an urgent need for this type of endeavor whether the goal is to reduce poverty or to protect the environment we need to move the poor populations out of the ecologically fragile regions Secondly the projects indicate that the Chinese government is capable of meeting this need Migration projects are complex and costly and without sufficient financial resources and systematic planning migration may fail to reduce poverty and could even aggravate it The rapid economic growth in China however makes such migration projects viable

The Routledge Handbook of the New African Diasporic Literature Lokangaka Losambe, Tanure Ojaide, 2024-05-16 The Routledge Handbook of the New African Diasporic Literature introduces world literature readers to the transnational multivocal writings of immigrant African authors Covering works produced in Europe North America and elsewhere in the world this book investigates three major aesthetic paradigms in African diasporic literature the Sankofan wave late 1960s early 1990s the Janusian wave 1990s 2020s and the Offshoots of the New Arrivants those born and growing up outside Africa Written by well established and emerging scholars of African and diasporic literatures from across the world the chapters in the book cover the works of well known and not so well known Anglophone Francophone and Lusophone writers from different theoretical positionalities and critical approaches pointing out the unique innovative artistic qualities of this major subgenre of African literature The focus on the diasporic consciousness of the writers and their works sets this handbook apart from others that solely emphasize migration which is more of a process than the community of settled African people involved in the dynamic acts of living reflected in diasporic writings This book will appeal to researchers and students from across the fields of Literature Diaspora Studies African Studies Migration Studies and Postcolonial Studies

African Political Activism in Postcolonial France Gillian

Glaes,2018-07-11 African Political Activism in Postcolonial France engages with several areas of scholarly inquiry ranging from the study of immigrants to the investigation of surveillance and the legacy of colonialism Within migration studies many important analyses have focused on integration yielding critical contributions to our understanding of immigration and identity This work moves in a different direction Factoring in the dynamics of colonialism decolonization and their effect on immigrant political activism and state policy in the postcolonial Cold War era reveals that immigrants from francophone Sub Saharan Africa were key players who shaped the development of public policy toward immigrants Through this approach we can understand how republicanism colonial ideology immigration policy and immigrant political activism intersected in the post colonial era shaping the reception of African workers and affecting their lives and experiences in France
