Annable, Maria Teodorescu, Petr Hlavinek, Ludo Diels, 2008-01-29 Soil and groundwater pollution caused by contaminants including petroleum hydrocarbons represents a serious threat to the environment in NATO and NATO Partner countries Solutions are needed that represent practical alternatives to costly remedial strategies yet still yield benefits to site managers This publication comprises the presentations made at the NATO Advanced Research Workshop held in Sinaia Romania 9 11 October 2006 The contributions represent a wide range of issues and challenges related to contaminated site management from low cost solutions to petroleum contaminated sites to advances in biological treatment methods This publication is meant to foster links between groups facing challenges cleaning up contaminated sites through presentations that explore the problems currently being addressed and solutions that are emerging in the field Biochar Application T. Komang Ralebitso-Senior, Caroline H. Orr, 2016-05-07 Biochar Application Essential Soil Microbial Ecology outlines the cutting edge research on the interactions of complex microbial populations and their functional structural and compositional dynamics as well as the microbial ecology of biochar application to soil the use of different phyto chemical analyses possibilities for future research and recommendations for climate change policy Biochar or charcoal produced from plant matter and applied to soil has become increasingly recognized as having the potential to address multiple contemporary concerns such as agricultural productivity and contaminated ecosystem amelioration primarily by removing carbon dioxide from the atmosphere and improving soil functions Biochar Application is the first reference to offer a complete assessment of the various impacts of biochar on soil and ecosystems and includes chapters analyzing all aspects of biochar technology and application to soil from ecogenomic analyses and application ratios to nutrient cycling and next generation sequencing Written by a team of international authors with interdisciplinary knowledge of biochar this reference will provide a platform where collaborating teams can find a common resource to establish outcomes and identify future research needs throughout the world Includes multiple tables and figures per chapter to aid in analysis and understanding Includes a comprehensive table of the methods used within the contents ecosystems contaminants future research and application opportunities explored in the book Includes knowledge gaps and directions of future research to stimulate further discussion in the field and in climate change policy Outlines the latest research on the interactions of complex microbial populations and their functional structural and compositional dynamics Offers an assessment of the impacts of biochar on soil and ecosystems Modern Spectroscopic Techniques for Drug Discovery and Environmental Sustainability Prakash, Om, Kumar, Neeraj, Gangola, Saurabh, Joshi, Samiksha, Nand, Viveka, 2025-04-10 Modern spectroscopic techniques play a pivotal role in advancing both drug discovery and environmental sustainability offering precise and efficient methods for analyzing complex molecular structures and interactions In the field of drug discovery techniques like nuclear magnetic resonance mass spectrometry and infrared spectroscopy enable researchers to identify potential drug candidates monitor their behavior in biological systems and optimize their safety profiles Spectroscopic methods in environmental science are used to detect pollutants monitor ecosystem health and evaluate the impact of human activity on the environment Further research into modern spectroscopic techniques may accelerate scientific discovery while supporting sustainable practices aimed at preserving human health and environmental well being Modern Spectroscopic Techniques for Drug Discovery and Environmental Sustainability explores the various aspects of spectroscopy in drug discovery and environmental sustainability It examines techniques in spectroscopic technology for improving the organized efforts in dealing with drug development and sustainable practices This book covers topics such as nutrient analysis infrared technology and biomarkers and is a useful resource for environmental scientists drug developers biologists academicians and researchers Reviews of Environmental
