

Talking to a child about death

Use simple language

Avoid using complex medical terms or euphemisms that may confuse the child.

Reassure

Reassure the child they are safe. Children may worry that they or a loved one will die too. Validate their worry and let them know how you are taking care of them and yourself.

Create a Memorial

Helping a child make a memorial provides a space for grieving and remembering their person.

Be Honest

Children can sense when something is wrong. Explain that the person has died and won't be coming back.

Embrace Emotions

Children may react in different ways to the death including sadness, anger, or confusion. Allow them to express their emotions and offer support.

Allow Questions

Children may have a lot of questions about death. Some may feel awkward and difficult to answer. It's okay to tell a child you don't know.

Seek Support

If you or your child is struggling with the loss seek support from a therapist or a support group.

A Child's View of Grief Alan Wolfelt, 2004-04-01 This concise resource for parents of grieving kids explores several key principles for helping children cope with grief and offers ways to create an emotional environment filled with love and acceptance It answers common questions such as What should I say to children when someone they love dies and Should young children attend funerals This guide also identifies and explains typical behaviors thoughts and feelings of grieving kids and offers adults tips for responding to them A Parent's Guide to Raising Grieving Children Phyllis R. Silverman, Madelyn Kelly, 2009-04-02 When children lose someone they love they lose part of their very identity Life as they knew it will never be quite the same The world that once felt dependable and safe may suddenly seem a frightening uncertain place where nobody understands what they're feeling In this deeply sympathetic book Phyllis R Silverman and Madelyn Kelly offer wise guidance on virtually every aspect of childhood loss from living with someone who's dying to preparing the funeral from explaining death to a two year old to managing the moods of a grieving teenager from dealing with people who don't understand to learning how and where to get help from friends therapists and bereavement groups from developing a new sense of self to continuing a relationship with the person who died Throughout the authors advocate an open honest approach suggesting that our instinctive desire to protect children from the reality of death may be more harmful than helpful Children want you to acknowledge what is happening to help them understand it the authors suggest In this way they learn to trust their own ability to make sense out of what they see Drawing on groundbreaking research into what bereaved children are really experiencing and quoting real conversations with parents and children who have walked that road the book allows readers to see what others have learned from mourning and surviving the death of a loved one In a culture where grief is so often invisible and misunderstood the wisdom derived from such first hand experience is invaluable Filled with compassion and common sense A Parent's Guide to Raising Grieving Children Rebuilding Your Family after the Loss of a Loved One offers readers a wealth of solace and sound advice and even where one might least expect it a measure of hope 12 Simple Tips and Tools to Help Your Grieving Child Mel Erickson, 2021-04-20 What do you say to a grieving child How do you break tragic news How can you help These questions plague caring adults as more children are left behind by the pandemic

Unresolved childhood grief is a critical issue having lifelong impact on a child. It can interfere with school performance, relationships, and wellbeing, causing acting out, depression, risk-taking behaviors, and suicide. As a certified grief specialist with over 30 years of experience working with bereaved children, the author shares her story, her faith, and valuable insights supported by actionable tips and tools. This little book is designed to give you the answers you seek and the language you need so that you can be the healing support that your child needs. You will learn four simple steps for you to break tragic news to a child, how your child grieves differently than you do, when your child may need a professional evaluation, kid-friendly language you can use to explain hard topics, creative and healing activities you can easily do at home, coping tools that you can apply in future challenges, books and website resources for when you want to learn more. Mr. Rogers said, "Making difficult matters mentionable is the best way to make them manageable." You can do this. This book is a great starting place.

Grief and Your Child Bob Kelleman, 2021-08-23 When your child faces the loss of someone close, their world no longer feels safe. How do you help your child with their fear and sadness, especially if you are

Parenting a Grieving Child Mary DeTurris Poust, 2002 Drawing on personal experience and expert advice, author Mary DeTurris Poust offers a practical guide for parents helping children through the grieving process in Parenting a Grieving Child

Companioning the Grieving Child Alan Wolfelt, 2012-07-01 Renowned author and educator Alan Wolfelt redefines the role of the grief counselor in this guide for caregivers to grieving children. Providing a viable alternative to the limitations of the medical establishment's model for companioning the bereaved, Wolfelt encourages counselors and other caregivers to aspire to a more compassionate philosophy in which the child is the expert of his or her grief, not the counselor or caregiver. The approach outlined in the book argues against treating grief as an illness to be diagnosed and treated, but rather for acknowledging it as an event that forever changes a child's worldview. By promoting careful listening and observation, this guide shows caregivers, family members, teachers, and others how to support grieving children and help them grow into healthy adults.

Guiding Your Child Through Grief Mary Ann Emswiler, James P. Emswiler, 2000 This unique parenting book from the directors of the nation's largest support groups for grieving children and their families offers positive and practical suggestions for helping children cope with their grief over time.

What Children Need When They Grieve Julia Wilcox Rathkey, 2010-03-24 GIVE YOUR CHILDREN WHAT THEY NEED MOST When Julia Wilcox Rathkey lost her husband, her three children lost their father. Within hours, it became sharply clear that each child—a twelve-year-old daughter and twin ten-year-old sons—would grieve the loss in a radically different way. While one harbored anger, another experienced denial, and the third was gripped with fear, Rathkey quickly determined that each youngster would require a different response from the adults in their lives, particularly from her. But despite the array of emotions and reactions, Rathkey arrived at four essentials that each child would need: routine, love, honesty, and security. These four concepts however simple are crucial for those who want to successfully guide their children through one of the most difficult passages they may face in life the loss of a loved one What Children Need When They Grieve explores The scope of a child s reactions to death including grief and fear Advice on how to talk with your child and how to recognize their need for privacy What other adults can do to help and what they should refrain from doing Concise and to the point advice about your child s daily routine at home and at school Written with compassion and the knowledge that comes from the experience of loss designed not to overwhelm with too much information and with an introduction by an expert in childhood bereavement What Children Need When They Grieve offers strategies support and comfort for grieving families The Companionship the Grieving Child Curriculum Book Patricia Morrissey,2013-06-01 Based on Alan Wolfelt s six needs of mourning and written to pair with Companionship the Grieving Child this thorough guide provides hundreds of hands on activities tailored for grieving children in three age groups preschool elementary and teens Through the use of readings games discussion questions and arts and crafts caregivers can help grieving young people acknowledge the reality of the death embrace the pain of the loss remember the person who died develop a new self identity search for meaning and accept support Sample activities include grief sock puppets expression bead bracelets the nurturing game and writing an autobiographical poem Activities are presented in an easy to follow format and each has a goal an objective a sequential description of the activity and a list of needed materials
