Sirian Experiments

Doris Lessing

Sirian Experiments:

The Sirian Experiments Doris Lessing, 1994 The Sirian Experiments is the third volume in Doris Lessing's celebrated space fiction series Canopus in Argos Archives. In this interlinked quintet of novels she creates a new extraordinary cosmos where the fate of the Earth is influenced by the rivalries and interactions of three powerful galactic empires: Canopus, Sirius, and their enemy Puttiora. Blending myth, fable, and allegory, Doris Lessing's astonishing visionary creation both reflects and redefines the history of our own world from its earliest beginnings to an inevitable tragic self-destruction. The Sirian Experiments chronicles the origins of our planet as the three galactic empires fight for control of the human race. The novel charts the gradual moral awakening of its narrator, Ambien II, a dry, dutiful, efficient female Sirian administrator. Witnessing the wanton colonization of land and people, Ambien begins to question her involvement in such insidious experimentation on her faith in the possibility of human progress itself growing weaker every day. The Sirian Experiments D. The Sirian

Experiments; the Report by Ambien 11, of the Five Doris Lessing, 1981 Genetics and the Literary Imagination

Clare Hanson, 2020-05-06 Oxford Textual Perspectives is a series of informative and provocative studies focused upon literary texts conceived of in the broadest sense of that term and the technologies, cultures, and communities that produce, inform, and receive them. It provides fresh interpretations of fundamental works and of the vital and challenging issues emerging in English literary studies. By engaging with the materiality of the literary text, its production and reception history, and frequently testing and exploring the boundaries of the notion of text itself, the volumes in the series question familiar frameworks and provide innovative interpretations of both canonical and less well-known works. This is the first book to explore the dramatic impact of genetics on literary fiction over the past four decades. After James Watson and Francis Crick's discovery of the structure of DNA in 1953 and the subsequent cracking of the genetic code, a gene-centric discourse developed which had a major impact not only on biological science but on wider culture. As figures like E. O. Wilson and Richard Dawkins popularised the neo-Darwinian view that behaviour was driven by genetic self-interest, novelists were both compelled and unnerved by such a vision of the origins and ends of life. This book maps the ways in which Doris Lessing, A. S. Byatt, Ian McEwan, and Kazuo Ishiguro wrestled with the reductionist neo-Darwinian account of human nature and with the challenge it posed to humanist beliefs about identity, agency, and morality. It argues that these novelists were alienated to varying degrees by neo-Darwinian arguments but that the recent shift to postgenomic science has enabled a greater rapprochement between biological and post-humanist concepts of human nature. The postgenomic view of organisms as agentic and interactive is echoed in the life writing of Margaret Drabble and Jackie Kay, which also explores the ethical implications of this holistic biological perspective As advances in postgenomics especially epigenetics provoke increasing public interest and concern this book offers a timely analysis of debates that have fundamentally altered our understanding of what it means to be human Identity in Doris Lessing's Space Fiction David F. Waterman,2006 In this study of identity in Doris Lessing s space fiction David Waterman devotes a chapter to each of the five novels in the Canopus in Argos Archives series as well as Briefing for a Descent into Hell Memoirs of a Survivor and finally The Reason for It This is an important addition to understanding the works of this prolific author His major argument is that Lessing s space fiction identifies the universal problem society s division into competitive and predatory groups and places it outside the bounds of time and space encouraging a social critique which takes into account our inherited blindness our degenerative disease which must be addressed before genuine progress can be made Lessing s examination of the relationship between individual identity and group identity produces a productive tension that accounts for so much of interest in her work over many years Nowhere is that tension more obvious or more interesting than in the space fiction that David Waterman so ably explores Waterman writes convincingly of Lessing s desire to cut through the performance the received ideas the habits and customs of our daily lives Drawing on a wide range of sources he provides an interdisciplinary reading of the space fiction and maps Lessing s brave exploration of the hierarchical landscapes that so often imprison us Waterman offers a timely reading of Lessing for contemporary readers living in the landscape of globalization Professor Margaret Moan Rowe Purdue University

Psychic Connection and the Twentieth-Century British Novel Mark Taylor,2023-01-08 Criticism of the novel routinely starts with the assumption that characters must think develop and strive for self fulfilment as individuals This book challenges the paradigm that individualism is innate to the novel as a medium It describes how major writers throughout the twentieth century many convinced by the supposed findings of parapsychology rejected the idea of the discrete character Treating the self as porous they offered novels structured around the development of communities and ideas rather than individuals By focusing on D H Lawrence Olaf Stapledon Aldous Huxley and Doris Lessing Mark Taylor demonstrates the need to broaden our approach to character when addressing the novel of the twentieth century and beyond Sirian Experiments: The Report by Ambien II, of the Five; Canopus in Argos: Archives Doris Lessing,1981 Where No Man has Gone Before Lucie Armitt,2012-11-12 How do women writers use science fiction to challenge assumptions about the genre and its representations of women To what extent is the increasing number of women writing science fiction reformulating the expectations of readers and critics What has been the effect of this phenomenon upon the academic establishment and the publishing industry These are just some of the questions addressed by this collection of original essays by women writers readers and critics of the genre But the undoubted existence of a recent surge of women s interest in science fiction is by no means the full story From Mary Shelley onwards women writers have played a central role in the shaping and reshaping of this genre irrespective of its undeniably patriarchal image Through a combination of essays on the work of writers such as Doris Lessing and Ursula Le Guin with others on still neglected writers such as Katherine Burdekin and C L Moore and a wealth of contemporaries including Suzette Elgin Gwyneth Jones Maureen Duffy and Josephine Saxton this anthology takes a step towards redressing the balance Perhaps above all what this collection demonstrates is that science fiction remains as particularly well suited to the exploration of woman as alien or other in our culture today as it was with the publication of Frankenstein in 1818 Mapping British Women Writers' Urban Imaginaries Arina Cirstea,2016-01-13 This study provides an alternative to the postmodern tradition of writing about the city by exploring spatialized constructions of gender and spiritual identity through an integrative framework based on insights from Bachelard's topoanalysis psychogeography feminist cultural theory and comparative literature and religion Post-colonial Women Writers Sunita Sinha,2008 Encounter Stephen Spender,Irving Kristol,1981-07 Contemporary Review ,1875 The Contemporary Review ,1875 The Golden Notebook Doris Lessing,2013-05-14 The Golden Notebook is Doris Lessing's most important work and has left its mark upon the ideas and feelings of a whole generation of women New York Times Book Review Anna is a writer author of one very successful novel who now keeps four notebooks In one with a black cover she reviews the African experience of her earlier years In a red one she records her political life her disillusionment with communism In a yellow one she writes a novel in which the heroine relives part of her own experience And in a blue one she keeps a personal diary Finally in love with an American writer and threatened with insanity Anna resolves to bring the threads of all four books together in a golden notebook Lessing's best known and most influential novel The Golden Notebook retains its extraordinary power and relevance decades after its initial publication Doris Lessing Newsletter ,1995 The Literary Review ,1983 Best Sellers ,1980
