Teaching For Better Thinking:

Teaching for Better Thinking Laurance J. Splitter, Ann Margaret Sharp, 1995 How can children learn to discuss think and reason in a rational way A discussion of the dynamics and language of a classroom operating as a community of inquiry in the making of meaning Practical issues cover implementation in the classroom and school and topics for ethical inquiry such as friendship sexuality peace discrimination health and the environment With bibliography Dr Splitter directs the Centre of Philosophy for Children within the ACER and Dr Sharp is an American philosopher in the same field Mind Expanding:

Teaching for Thinking and Creativity in Primary Education Rupert Wegerif, 2010-08-16 An essential addition Wegerif zooms in on the most important ingredient of all in a learning to learn classroom culture the kinds of talk that are allowed and encouraged and brings together both scholarly and practical approaches in a highly fruitful and accessible way Guy Claxton author of Building Learning Power What s the Point of School and New Kinds of Smart This is a thought provoking and readable book which makes a very good case for the importance of teaching thinking skills and encouraging creativity through dialogue Professor Neil Mercer University of Cambridge UK author of Words and Minds and Dialogue and Development There is growing interest in developing flexible thinking and learning skills in the primary classroom but there has been little agreement as to exactly what these skills are and how best to teach for them This innovative book responds to that challenge with a coherent account of what thinking and creativity are and how they can be taught Taking a dialogic approach it shows how engaging children in real dialogue is possible in every area of the curriculum and how this can lead to more reflective considerate and creative children who are able to think for themselves and to learn creatively Wegerif explores the success of approaches such as Philosophy for Children Thinking Together Dialogic Teaching and Building Learning Power Using illustrations and activities he explains how teaching and learning across the primary curriculum can be transformed This book is important reading for all primary teachers and trainees who are looking for practical ideas for teaching thinking It will also be valuable for anyone who wants to understand education and think more about what is most important in education Teaching Thinking Robert J. Swartz, David N. Perkins, 1990 This teaching guide provides an integrated framework for teaching thinking skills which involves both teaching thinking in a separate program or course and infusing the teaching of thinking into standard subject area instruction across the curriculum Individual chapters deal with the following topics 1 the nature of thinking skills and evidence that people can learn to think better 2 the improvement of thinking 3 kinds of thinking broad categories specialized kinds of thinking metacognition and some thinking frameworks 4 the infusion of teaching thinking into regular subject area instruction 5 choosing and using separate instructional programs designed to teach thinking 6 program development and selection of thinking skill goals 7 lesson design and instructional strategies structured thinking teaching for transfer and metacognition 8 support systems for teachers and schools in the teaching of thinking 9 approaches to evaluation and 10 types of tests objective and interpretive Individual chapters contain references DB Teaching Thinking Robert J. Swartz, D.N. Perkins, 2016-07-15 Originally published in 1990 this title attempts to provide for the educational practitioner an overview of a field that responded in the 1980s to a major educational agenda This innovative agenda called for teaching students in ways that dramatically improved the quality of their thinking Its context is a variety of changes in education that brought the explicit teaching of thinking to the consciousness of more and more teachers and administrators

Good Thinking Erik Palmer, 2016 A large part of our everyday communication involves argumentation and reasoning for example when we want to persuade others make good purchasing decisions or analyze the messages we receive from advertisers and politicians But how well do we prepare students for these tasks Can they critically evaluate a speaker's point of view Understand rhetorical devices Apply logic Build an effective argument whether written or spoken In his new book Good Thinking Erik Palmer shows teachers of all subject matters how to transform the activities they already use into openings for improving student thinking Building on his previous work in Well Spoken Stenhouse 2011 and Digitally Speaking Stenhouse 2014 he reveals how all students not just those in advanced classes can begin developing sophisticated reasoning skills that will improve their oral and written communications Blending theory with practice Palmer shares a wide range of classroom tested lessons including ways to understand argument in paintings and images address ad hominem attacks using a traveling debate create a class comedy club write syllogisms analyze character and plot development and teach logic through a class Booger Patrol He explains complex concepts in simple practical language that gives teachers a deft understanding of the principles of good arguments proper use of evidence persuasive techniques and rhetorical tricks Once you start looking you'll see arguments everywhere Palmer writes All of them are opportunities to teach good thinking
