Museums in Arabia Karen Exell, Sarina Wakefield, 2016-05-12 Museum activity has in recent years undergone major and rapid development in the Arabian Peninsula with the regeneration of existing museums as well as the establishment of new ones Alongside such rapid expansion questions are inevitably raised as to the new challenges museums face in this region and whether the museum as a central focus of heritage preservation also runs the risk of overshadowing local forms of heritage performance and preservation With contributions from leading academics from a range of disciplines and heritage practitioners with first hand experience of working in the region this volume addresses the issues and challenges facing museums in Kuwait Saudi Arabia Qatar Yemen and the UAE It focuses on the themes of politics public engagement and the possibility of a new museum paradigm which might appropriately reflect the interests and culture of the region The interdisciplinary approaches analyse museum development from both an inside and outside perspective suggesting that museums do not follow a uniform trajectory across the region but are embedded within each states socio cultural context individual government agendas and political realities Including case study analysis which brings the more marginal nations into the debates as well as new empirical data and critical evaluation of the role of the museum in the Arabian Peninsula societies this book adds fresh perspectives to the study of Gulf heritage and museology It will appeal to regional and international practitioners and academics across the disciplines of museum studies cultural studies and anthropology as well as to anyone with an interest in the Gulf and Middle East

Betrayal of the Homeland Samer Abboud,2026-03-24 The Syrian regime endured the uprisings that began in 2011 aided by Russian military intervention in 2015 that changed the trajectory of the conflict and brought more territory under government control until its eventual collapse in 2024 Over this period how did the state attempt to manage the conflict away from the battlefield and reestablish control over the population Samer Abboud argues that the Syrian regime sought to entrench its rule during wartime through bifurcating society into loyal and disloyal subjects and punishing those it deemed treacherous The regime framed the conflict as a war on terror portraying its opponents as traitors to the homeland In the post 2015 period it established new laws courts and legal categories that targeted betrayal which could include anything from military desertion to absenteeism to critical social media posts Disloyal subjects were subjected to various forms of punishment and denied reentry into the country if they had been displaced Bringing together the regime s narratives and rhetoric with the machinery of bureaucratic practices Abboud traces how the state sculpted the divide between loyalty and disloyalty Empirically rich and theoretically informed Betrayal of the Homeland offers a panoramic view of the politics of punishment during the final decade of the Assad regime with broader implications for understanding how authoritarian states manage conflicts
