Up in the Air Greg J. Bamber, Jody Hoffer Gittel, Thomas A. Kochan, Andrew Von Nordenflycht, 2013-07-15 And you thought the passengers were mad Airline employees are fed up too with pay cuts increased workloads and management's miserly ways which leave workers to explain to often enraged passengers why flying has become such a miserable experience

New York Times December 22 2007 When both an industry's workers and its customers report high and rising frustration with the way they are being treated something is fundamentally wrong. In response to these conditions many of the world's airlines have made ever deeper cuts in services and their workforces. Is it too much to expect airlines or any other enterprise to provide a fair return to investors, high quality reliable service to their customers and good jobs for their employees? Measured against these three expectations the airline industry is failing. In the first five years of the twenty first century alone U.S. airlines lost a total of 30 billion while shedding 100 000 jobs forcing the remaining workers to give up over 15 billion in wages and benefits. Combined with plummeting employee morale, shortages of air traffic controllers and increased congestion and flight delays a total collapse of the industry may be coming. Is this state of affairs inevitable? Or is it possible to design a more sustainable, less volatile industry that better balances the objectives of customers, investors, employees and the wider society? Does deregulation imply total abrogation of government's responsibility to oversee an industry showing the clear signs of deterioration and increasing risk of a pending crisis? Greg J. Bamber, Jody Hoffer Gittel, Thomas A. Kochan and Andrew von Nordenflycht explore such questions in a well informed and engaging way using a mix of quantitative evidence and qualitative studies of airlines from North America, Asia, Australia and Europe. Up in the Air provides clear and realistic strategies for achieving a better, more equitable balance among the interests of customers, employees and shareholders. Specifically, the authors recommend that firms learn from the innovations of companies like Southwest and Continental Airlines in order to build a positive workplace culture that fosters coordination and commitment to high quality service, labor relations policies that avoid long drawn out conflicts in negotiating new agreements and business strategies that can sustain investor, employee and customer support through the ups and downs of business cycles. Catalogue of the Pictures National Gallery (Great Britain), 1921. Italian Medieval Sculpture in the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Cloisters Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.), Lisbeth Castelnovo-Tedesco, Jack Sultanian, 2010. The collection of Italian medieval sculpture in The Metropolitan Museum of Art and The Cloisters began with the acquisition in 1908 of a Romanesque column statue. Today the Museum's holdings comprise more than seventy works dating from the ninth to the late fifteenth century. The birthplaces of these works range from Sicily to Venice, some typify local styles, others illustrate the intense artistic exchanges taking place within Italy and between Italy and the wider world. Technological advances of the last decades have made it possible to determine more precisely the materials and techniques from which works of art are made, the history of their alteration and the mechanisms of their deterioration. Using such techniques, scholars have been able to ascertain, for example, that sculptures previously thought to be modern works carved in the medieval manner were in fact completely authentic. This innovative volume represents a watershed in the study of sculpture, a collaborative dialogue between an art historian and a conservator, between art history and art science that deepens our understanding of the object we see while illuminating its elusive, enigmatic history.
