

The Anorexic Experience

Angela Mullins

The Anorexic Experience:

The Anorexic Experience Marilyn Lawrence, 1995 Discusses the disorder of anorexia from the premise that it may be a reflection of problems encountered by women in our society and not necessarily the result of individual circumstances

The Anorexic Experience Marilyn LAWRENCE, 1995 The Anorexic Self Paula Saukko, 2008-05-08 Traditionally women's eating disorders are thought to be strongly influenced by media images idealizing a normative thin female body Taking a different approach The Anorexic Self critically examines diagnostic and popular discourses on anorexia that construct narrow and ideal notions of the female self Paula Saukko analyzes the personal and political implications of discourses on the anorexic self in multiple contexts including her own experience of being diagnosed anorexic psychiatrist Hilde Bruch's postwar research on anorexia and media coverage of Karen Carpenter Princess Diana and other women with eating disorders Saukko traces the history of the discourses from postwar idealization of masculine autonomy to postindustrial valorization of feminine flexibility and also explores their politically progressive and psychologically healing as well as sexist and humiliating dimensions Drawing on narrative therapy dialogic theory and multisited ethnography The Anorexic Self cultivates a less judgmental and more self reflexive way of relating to ourselves others and societies in which we live

Anorexic Bodies Morag MacSween, Morag Macsween, 2013-11-26 This book explores the ways in which anorexic women use their eating to control their bodies It argues that the female body in modern Western culture is understood as open and accessible and female appetite as dangerous and voracious Anorexia attempts to resist both these constructions in the creation of a closed desireless body Since anorexic women resist the power of collective ideologies their resistance cannot work the closed body becomes its own prison

A Lacanian Reading of Anorexia Domenico Cosenza, 2023-08-09 This book presents a Lacanian perspective on the understanding and treatment of anorexia supported by case material research and theoretical insight from the author's 25 years of clinical practice Domenico Cosenza explains how anorexia constitutes a challenge for contemporary psychoanalytic clinicians assesses previous theoretical understandings and examines clinical contributions from other schools of psychoanalysis Cosenza argues that anorexia cannot be treated by following a classical psychoanalytic path and here draws on numerous clinical cases to articulate a Lacanian approach which addresses core concerns not resolved elsewhere Elaborating on Lacanian concepts including refusal and the object nothing Cosenza offers a new approach for all psychoanalytically informed clinicians working with anorexia A Lacanian Reading of Anorexia will be of great interest to psychoanalysts psychiatrists clinical psychologists and psychotherapists interested in Lacanian perspectives and the dynamic analytical approach in the treatment of anorexia

Reel Food Anne L. Bower, 2012-08-06 Reel Food is the first book devoted to food as a vibrant and evocative element of film featuring original essays by major food studies scholars among them Carole Counihan and Michael Ashkenazi This collection reads various films through their uses of food from major food films like Babette's Feast and Big Night to less obvious choices including

The Godfather trilogy and TheMatrix The contributors draw attention to the various ways in which food is employed to make meaning in film In some cases such as Soul Food and Tortilla Soup for example food is used to represent racial and ethnic identities In other cases such as Chocolat and LikeWater for Chocolate food plays a role in gender and sexual politics And of course there is also discussion of the centrality of popcorn to the movie going experience This book is a feast for scholars foodies and cinema buffs It will be of major interest to anyone working in popular culture film studies and food studies at both the undergraduate and graduate level

The Experience of Living with an Anorexic Voice Angela Mullins, 2020

Background Current Anorexia Nervosa AN research concurs early clinical descriptions of an eating disorder depicted for some individuals as an internal voice Tierney Pugh Pugh 2020 These depictions of the AV have been largely valuable when investigating symptom severity as well as in the context of AV contributions to AN relapse Much is still unknown about this phenomenon as awareness of its influential role in AN has emerged primarily in the past decade Largely absent from AN literature are the intricacies of individual experience of the AV over the course of the entire AN illness trajectory from onset through maintenance relapse and recovery as recounted in first person narrative accounts This suggests aspects of the AV currently overlooked could be unearthed by means of qualitative investigation and further contribute to the existing knowledgebase of both this phenomenon and its connection to AN Aims The study aimed to gain a rich and detailed understanding of the way in which individuals with AN experience the AV This study aimed to capture the AV experience from the point of illness onset through to recovery it also sought to provide the health professions with helpful insights into what individuals with AN who report an AV are possibly experiencing Methodology Six semi structured interviews were conducted with women who identified as recovered from AN and who confirmed an experience of the AV in conjunction with their illness The verbatim transcripts were analysed by using Interpretative Phenomenological Analysis IPA Findings Three superordinate themes The Perils of Self Acceptance During Puberty The Anorexic Voice Battleground Healing Through Compassion and ten subordinate themes emerged Conclusions The findings indicated an experience of the AV as closely aligned with AN symptom emergence The AV was referred to as a separate internal voice depicted by participants as unique from other inner thoughts and dialogue Initially experienced as benevolently enticing AN engagement as illness progressed AV presence became malevolent Eventually the demanding AV narrative began to feel controlling particularly within treatment when participants strived for a life without AN Amidst feeling controlled by the AV participants experienced a greater emergence of self directed compassion during the recovery process Participants relayed their experience of self directed compassion as healing an antidote to AV hostility Participants reported how the AV presence was not directly addressed in treatment and so after treatment ended the AV presences remained The current study provides a foundational knowledge of the under researched area of the AV as experienced in conjunction with AN illness from first person narrative accounts The findings future recommendations and conclusions within this study are discussed in reference to the praxis of

Counselling Psychology CoP and are applicable to aiding other health professions working with this clinical population

Abstract A Comparison of the Subjective Experience of Individuals with Eating Disorders and Phobic Disorders Kelly Marguerite Bemis, 1986 Dying to Please Avis Rumney, 2009-08-11 This second edition updates the 1983 work a gem Booklist with a wealth of new information The author a therapist and recovered anorexic draws upon her own experience and extensive research to produce a comprehensive account of the symptoms causes and treatments of anorexia nervosa She illuminates the anorexic's paradox self annihilation in service of self preservation and the central task of recovery development of a Self The author addresses the origins and attributes of anorexia and accompanying disorders the use and misuse of the Internet and the concept of recovery She addresses different therapies in detail as well as therapies for families and interventions A directory of organizations a list of resources for information and referral a bibliography and index are included The Depressive Experience of Normal Weight Bulimic Women Marilyn Kay Stuckey, 1981 Anorexia Nervosa Paul E. Garfinkel, David M. Garner, 1982 Abstract A text on anorexia nervosa for mental health practitioners gynecologists endocrinologists and pediatricians presents a comprehensive multidimensional model for understanding and treating this syndrome The etiology and perpetuation of anorexia nervosa encompasses a broad range of physiologic psychologic sociocultural and familial factors The 12 chapters of the text offer a detailed clinical picture of this disease and criteria for its diagnosis Various subclasses of this syndrome e.g. bulimia are characterized and significant changes in hypothalamic pituitary gland function are described The authors present data that anorexia nervosa is increasing in older as well as younger women across different social classes The interrelationship among body image distortions interoceptive disturbances and the sense of personal ineffectiveness experienced by anorexics is clarified The potential role of the family for fostering the development of anorexia is stressed A comprehensive individualized treatment plan is presented w/ Digest of Neurology and Psychiatry, 1985 Women who Have Recovered from Eating Disorders Rachel Margaret Russell, 1998 Managing Anorexia Nervosa Terry Carney, 2006 Eating disorders comprise a diverse group which include anorexia nervosa bulimia nervosa binge eating disorder and other non specific eating disorders Recently the rising incidence of obesity in the population and in particular childhood obesity has attracted attention in western countries This book concentrates mainly on anorexia nervosa not in a vain attempt to find a representative eating disorder but because it encapsulates wider medico legal and socio ethical dilemmas around the use of coercion in the management of an often chronic and unresponsive condition especially in adulthood The Female Body in Western Culture Susan Rubin Suleiman, 1986 Discusses the images of women in art films and literature social attitudes towards women and changing perceptions of sexual roles Women's Experience of Feminist Therapy and Counselling Eileen McLeod, 1994 Initiatives beyond therapy and counselling tackling a range of social inequalities are also essential to realizing women's emotional wellbeing Counsellors views and experience are also analysed to clarify the nature of their theories and methods the impact of practice on them as workers and the significance of attempts to create non hierarchical forms of organization Dissertation Abstracts International ,1980 Social Analysis ,1995 Anorexia Nervosa R. L. Palmer,1989 This up to date edition of Anorexia Nervosa reviews current thinking on the subject and provides accessible sympathetic guidance for anorexics their families and helpers professional and otherwise The San Francisco Jung Institute Library Journal ,1988
