The Gongyang Commentary on The Spring and Autumn Annals H. Miller, 2015-03-18 This book is a full translation of the Gongyang Commentary on the Spring and Autumn Annals a history of the Chinese state of Lu from 722 to 481 BCE annotated so as to highlight the moral philosophy of its supposed writer Confucius Huang Di Nei Jing Su Wen Paul U. Unschuld, Hermann Tessenow, 2011-05-18 This complete annotated translation of the Su Wen is exemplary in every respect The translation will stimulate new directions in research while providing the first accurate guide to the basic concepts of traditional Chinese medicine for a wider readership Donald Harper The University of Chicago Chinese Spatial Strategies Jianfei Zhu, 2004-08-02 Chinese Spatial Strategies presents a study of social spaces of the capital of Ming Qing China 1420 1911 Focusing on early Ming and early and middle Qing it explores architectural urban and geographical space of Beijing in relation to issues of history geopolitics urban social structure imperial rule and authority symbolism and aesthetic and existential experience At once historical and theoretical the work argues that there is a Chinese approach to spatial disposition which is strategic and holistic Spring and Autumn Annals Confucius, 2021-09-10 The Spring and Autumn Annals or Chunqiu is an ancient Chinese chronicle that has been one of the core Chinese classics since ancient times The Annals is the official chronicle of the State of Lu and covers a 241 year period from 722 to 481 BC It is the earliest surviving Chinese historical text to be arranged in annals form Annual Report Vermont Agricultural Experiment Station, 1893 Memoirs of the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal Asiatic Society (Calcutta, India), 1910 Exploring the Composition of the Pentateuch L. S. Baker Jr., Kenneth Bergland, Felipe A. Masotti, A. Rahel Wells, 2020-11-12 For many years the historical critical quest for a reconstruction of the origin s and development of the Pentateuch or Hexateuch has been dominated by the documentary hypothesis the heuristic power of which has produced a consensus so strong that an interpreter who did not operate within its framework was hardly regarded as a scholar However the relentless march of research on this topic has continued to yield new and refined analyses data methodological tools and criticism In this spirit the contributions to this volume investigate new ideas about the composition of the Pentateuch arising from careful analysis of the biblical text against its ancient Near Eastern background. Covering a wide spectrum of topics and diverging perspectives, the chapters in this book are grouped into two parts. The first is primarily concerned with the history of scholarship and alternative approaches to the development of the Pentateuch. The second focuses on the exegesis of particular texts relevant to the composition of the Torah. The aim of the project is to foster investigation and collegial dialogue in a spirit of humility and frankness without imposing uniformity. In addition to the editors, the contributors include Tiago Arrais, Richard E. Averbeck, John S. Bergsma, Joshua A. Berman, Daniel I. Block, Richard Davidson, Roy E. Gane, Duane A. Garrett, Richard S. Hess, Benjamin Kilcher, Michael LeFebvre, Ji Moskala, and Christian Vogel.

Early Chinese Jades Una Pope-Hennessy, 1923 The Encyclopaedia Britannica Hugh Chisholm, 1911 The Last Japanese Embassy to Tang China (836-839) Saeki Arikiyo, Joshua A. Fogel, 2025-11-21. Over a span of 260 years from 630 to 894, Japanese embassies to Tang China played a vital role in importing Tang governance and culture to Japan, significantly shaping the political and cultural landscape of an emerging Japanese state with codes of law. However, the seventeenth embassy (836-839) during the Jwa period, fraught with turmoil, marked the final mission to Tang China. Alongside disasters and significant loss of life during the voyage, mysteries persist around Viceambassador Ono no Takamura's refusal to board ship, the government's insistence on the mission, and the objectives behind dispatching this mission to China. In this volume, Professor Saeki Arikiyo traces the journey from departure to return, focusing on the individuals involved and the prevailing trends of the era. Drawing upon a rich tapestry of historical sources, including records from Shoku Nihon kiki and the accompanying monk Ennin's Nitoku junrei kiki, Saeki delves into the arduous journey of this final mission and unravels the intricate motives of the embassy personnel and their encounters in Tang China, offering a comprehensive examination of a transformative chapter in ancient Japanese diplomatic history. Reading like a novel, Joshua Fogel's elegant translation of Saki Arikiyo's masterful study of the final Japanese embassy to Tang China (836-839) vividly brings to life a dynamic East Asian world. Hundreds of officials, monks, merchants, musicians, and sailors risked their lives in pursuit of knowledge, rituals, paintings, texts, and wares. This embassy marked the twilight of an era as Japan, Silla, Korea, and Tang China faced growing political instability; the motivation and capacity for such formal diplomatic exchanges began to fade. A compelling read for students and scholars of early China, Korea, and Japan, Thomas D. Conlan, Professor of East Asian History at Princeton University, praises Saki Arikiyo's detailed account of the Japanese embassy sent to Tang China in the 830s, offering many fresh insights into the domestic and international contexts that propelled and ultimately ended this significant diplomatic mission. Saki's resourceful integration of a wide variety of historical materials, including contemporaneous diaries and works of poetry, is vividly conveyed in Joshua Fogel's translation, which captures the author's suspenseful and engaging narrative style. Matthew Fraleigh, Associate Professor of East Asian Literature and Culture at Brandeis University, illustrates the perils of sea travel and the interactions among various groups from Japan China and Silla in diplomatic commercial and religious exchanges the book provides a compelling explanation for the discontinuation of Japanese embassies to Tang China This study delivers more than just a narrative of a diplomatic mission it weaves a rich tapestry of individual experiences and will captivate anyone interested in ancient East Asia international relations or the history of Buddhism Yiwen Li Associate Professor Department of Chinese and History City University of Hong Kong
