Reflective Practices in Arts Education Pamela Burnard, Sarah Hennessy, 2006-08-12 It is an exciting time to be an artist and artist educator Networks of schools and artists are being motivated by arts partnerships a relatively new phenomenon in a field which whilst disparate in its character and practice is marked by a common intention to respond effectively and critically to politically driven agendas of accountability school improvement and pupil attainment More than ever artists and educators alike have begun to realise the need to develop practices which offer the development of artist educator pedagogies as agencies for change and political action Understanding the function of reflective practice the conditions which support it and its impact on learning are addressed throughout this book We hope that the book will motivate readers with a diversity of interests and needs to engage in reflections of their own professional practices and of the practices of the communities in which they work This book is about reflection The thesis about the field it covers and major premise of this book is that reflection matters at every turn in arts engagement and even more so in educational settings where artist educators share a passion for facilitating and understanding the how of learners engagement with particular art forms It aims to show ways in which reflection can inform and transform practice in terms of what when and how reflection is embodied in arts engagement

Anguera, José Luis Losada, Judith Schoonenboom, 2025-10-27 Having started as a small movement in the 1980s the study of mixed methods research burst onto the scene around the beginning of the second millennium After decades of intense dispute between supporters of the qualitative perspective and their quantitative counterparts with both sides having grown deeply entrenched in their respective views a complementary approach promising the possibility of integration had finally been proposed By that time however the vast majority of researchers had committed to one stance or the other very few of us argued that the two approaches could be complementary Since then the number of publications scientific meetings and other activities devoted to the mixed methods approach has increased exponentially throughout the world At a substantive level we are pleased to see that a growing number of fields are generating mixed methods research and we are eager to assist in promoting this trend But naturally the field has experienced some growing pains a certain degree of heterogeneity in terms of approaches differences of opinion regarding certain conceptualizations for example mixed methods vs multimethods numerous design taxonomies multiple ways of integrating qualitative and quantitative elements and various positions on how best to overcome the enduring lack of symmetry between qualitative and quantitative aspects The methodological and substantive spectrum is vast and broad possibly because the mixed methods approach has become obligatory for much research not only in psychology but in practically all branches of the social sciences
