Subject to Display Jennifer A. Gonzalez, 2011-03-04 An exploration of the visual culture of race through the work of five contemporary artists who came to prominence during the 1990s Over the past two decades artists James Luna Fred Wilson Amalia Mesa Bains Pep n Osorio and Ren e Green have had a profound impact on the meaning and practice of installation art in the United States In Subject to Display Jennifer Gonz lez offers the first sustained analysis of their contribution linking the history and legacy of race discourse to innovations in contemporary art Race writes Gonz lez is a social discourse that has a visual history The collection and display of bodies images and artifacts in museums and elsewhere is a primary means by which a nation tells the story of its past and locates the cultures of its citizens in the present All five of the American installation artists Gonz lez considers have explored the practice of putting human subjects and their cultures on display by staging elaborate dioramas or site specific interventions in galleries and museums in doing so they have created powerful social commentary of the politics of space and the power of display in settings that mimic the very spaces they critique These artists installations have not only contributed to the transformation of contemporary art and museum culture but also linked Latino African American and Native American subjects to the broader spectrum of historical colonialism race dominance and visual culture From Luna s museum installation of his own body and belongings as artifacts and Wilson s provocative juxtapositions of museum objects to Mesa Bains s allegorical home altars Osorio s condensed spaces bedrooms living rooms barbershops prison cells and Green s genealogies of cultural contact the theoretical and critical endeavors of these artists demonstrate how race discourse is grounded in a visual technology of display

Atypical Cognitive Deficits in Developmental Disorders Sarah H. Broman, Jordan Grafman, 2014-02-25 This volume is based on a conference held to examine what is known about cognitive behaviors and brain structure and function in three syndromes and to evaluate the usefulness of such models The goal of this endeavor is to add to the knowledge base of cognitive neuroscience within a developmental framework Most of what is known about the neurological basis of cognitive function in humans has been learned from studies of central nervous system trauma or disease in adults Certain neurodevelopmental disorders affect the central nervous system in unique ways by producing specific as opposed to generalized cognitive deficit Studies of these disorders using neurobiological and behavioral techniques can yield new insights into the localization of cognitive function and the developmental course of atypical cognitive profiles The focus of this book is a discussion of the multidisciplinary research findings from studies of autism and Williams and Turner syndromes The approaches methods techniques and findings reported are at the cutting edge of neuroscience research on complex behavior patterns and their neural substrates Each disorder is accompanied by some degree of general cognitive impairment or mental retardation Of greater interest are the atypical deficits in which a cognitive function is spared such as language in Williams syndrome or is disproportionately depressed as are spatial discrimination skills and visual motor coordination in

Turner syndrome Drastically reduced or seemingly absent language capabilities and little interaction with other people characterize the core autism syndrome A comprehensive and critical discussion of appropriate statistical techniques is made vivid by examples given from studies of small groups or single subjects in neurolinguistics and related fields
