World Development Report 1994 Infrastructure For Development:

World Development Report 1994 Alec Baron,1994-09-01      World Development Report 1994 ,1994 World Development Report 1994 examines the link between infrastructure and development and explores ways in which developing countries can improve both the provision and the quality of infrastructure services In recent decades developing countries have made substantial investments in infrastructure achieving dramatic gains for households and producers by expanding their access to services such as safe water sanitation electric power telecommunications and transport Even more infrastructure investment and expansion are needed in order to extend the reach of services especially to people living in rural areas and to the poor But as this report shows the quantity of investment cannot be the exclusive focus of policy Improving the quality of infrastructure service also is vital Both quantity and quality improvements are essential to modernize and diversify production help countries compete internationally and accommodate rapid urbanization The report identifies the basic cause of poor past performance as inadequate institutional incentives for improving the provision of infrastructure To promote more efficient and responsive service delivery incentives need to be changed through commercial management competition and user involvement Several trends are helping to improve the performance of infrastructure First innovation in technology and in the regulatory management of markets makes more diversity possible in the supply of services Second an evaluation of the role of government is leading to a shift from direct government provision of services to increasing private sector provision and recent experience in many countries with public private partnerships is highlighting new ways to increase efficiency and expand services Third increased concern about social and environmental sustainability has heightened public interest in infrastructure design and performance      World Development Report 1994 World Bank,1994 This eighteenth annual World Development Report assesses what a more market driven and intergrated world means for workers It asks which development strategies best address worker s needs and what domestic labor market policies can do to establish a more equitable distribution of income greater job security and higher workplace standards while preserving and indeed enhancing the efficiency of labor markets      Informe sobre el desarrollo mundial 1994 World Bank,1994 This seventeenth edition of the World Development Report focuses on services that are essential for households business and governments to function transport telecommunications water and sanitation power and gas and major water works Quantity vs Quality Infrastructure is one of the areas in which government policy and finance have an important role to play because of its pervasive impact on economic development and human welfare World Development Report 1994 presents new strategies for developing infrastructure in more effective less wasteful ways The Report shows that the quantity of investment cannot be the exclusive focus of policy It is also vital that the quality of infrastructure service be improved Readers are provided with a review of developing countries experience with infrastructure development and an assessment of its current state The Report asserts that the time is ripe for change It considers new ways of meeting public needs for services from infrastructure ways that are more efficient more user responsive more environmentally friendly and more resourceful in using both the public and private sectors Changing the incentives To promote more efficient and responsive delivery of infrastructure services the Report points to the need to change incentives through the application of three instruments commercial management competition and stakeholder involvement The Report also identifies trends that will facilitate improvements in the performance of infrastructure These include innovation in technology and regulatory management the new willingness of governments to involve the private sector and increased concern about social and environmental sustainability Benefits from improved performance would unquestionably be large Approximately 200 billion is invested in the sector annually in the developing world and the savings that would accrue from better provision and performance would be substantial

World Development Report 1994, 1994 Infrastructure Investments in Developing Economies Giang Dang, Low Sui Pheng, 2014-10-18 This book aims to provide knowledge on how infrastructure is planned and built in a typical developing country and what key variables are there in the system limiting the efficient use of public investments in infrastructure The book begins with a comprehensive literature review on construction and economic development and trade and economic development The focus of the book is on the case of Vietnam with lessons drawn for other developing economies The book employs the mixed use of data to provide a stronger basis for analysis and interpretation of related government policies Based on the research findings the book recommends significant capacity building work for Vietnam to develop capacities that would remove constraints on the efficient use of public investments in infrastructure The general principles of significant capacity building work which are useful for policy implications are introduced in the book Analysts academics public and private communities in developing countries can adopt the research findings as guiding principles to bring about changes in their current use of public investments in infrastructure thus supporting their trade and economic growth in the long term

International Benchmarking of Infrastructure Performance in the Southern African Customs Union Countries [eljko Bogeti?], Johannes W. Fedderke, 2006 The paper provides a first systematic benchmarking of infrastructure performance in the Southern African Customs Union SACU countries South Africa Botswana Lesotho Namibia and Swaziland in four major sectors electricity water and sanitation information and communication technology and transportation against the relevant group of comparator countries using a new World Bank international data base with objective and perception based indicators of infrastructure performance from over 200 countries The analysis suggests important comparative gaps in all major infrastructure sectors although performance varies widely across the SACU region Performance shortfalls are particularly acute in rural areas where most of the poor live The benchmarking is envisaged as a comparative input into deeper analyses of infrastructure performance especially in the context of the ongoing scaling up efforts for example South Africa Lesotho and Botswana

Infrastructure for Smart Villages Hemanta Doloi, 2024-07-29 This book intends to initiate a fresh articulation of need based infrastructure provisions in rural contexts Departing from the conventional theories and practices of infrastructure planning and development applied in urban settings the book presents a comprehensive suite of technical and non technical indicators that rationalise fit for purpose planning development and operations of rural infrastructure Drawing from global practices in public and private sectors and research based evidence a distinctive argument is put forward for promoting location specific infrastructure development from effectiveness practicality affordability and sustainability perspectives The argument encompasses wider social cultural and economic contexts that are unique to rural settings and the book highlights a clear roadmap of how the UN s sustainable development goals SDGs are at the core of developing rural communities with necessary infrastructure provisions that are purpose built affordable risk averse and resilient This book will provide an overview of some of the little understood and sometimes counter intuitive best practices on rural infrastructure and value based priorities that have emerged in uplifting rural communities in developing economies over the last 30 years Drawing from the global literature and practice based evidence across a complete spectrum of relevant disciplines this book will provide readers with a clear articulation of the innovative ideas around harnessing rural potential and empowering rural communities with added support in growth and progressive development in the context of interconnected infrastructure systems and improved living standards It is key reading for development planning and infrastructure courses as well as professionals and researchers involved in international development aid and provision in rural areas

Public-Private Partnerships in Infrastructure Kumar V. Pratap,Rajesh Chakrabarti,2018-01-09 The book provides readers with a clear understanding of infrastructure challenges how Public Private Partnerships PPP can help and their use in practice Infrastructure bottlenecks are generally considered the most important constraint to growth in many countries worldwide Historically infrastructure projects have been financed and implemented by the state However owing to the fiscal resource crunch time and cost over runs and the general poor quality of publicly provided infrastructure many emerging market governments including India have increasingly adopted PPPs with billions of dollars of investment riding on them The results have been varied from spectacular airports like the Delhi International Airport Limited with the associated controversy over land use to the renegotiation of contracts as in the case of Tata Mundra Ultra Mega Power Project Illustrating concepts with relevant case studies the book makes the challenges of PPPs understandable to industry and management practitioners as well as students of management public policy and economics It is useful to practitioners wishing to avoid the pitfalls in the tricky terrain of PPPs and policymakers wanting guidance in crafting proper incentives It also helps students gain a holistic and applied understanding of this increasingly important and popular model Public Private Partnerships PPPs in India are currently under stress A comprehensive treatment of the subject by a long time and erudite practitioner and a management academic this book should be useful to students trying to learn the basics while also being valuable to professionals and policy makers The book suggests that the Government should hold bidders accountable to their submitted bids thereby preserving sanctity of contract This will discourage aggressive bidding which has become a serious and endemic problem The book also suggests the use of better bidding criteria to mitigate traffic risk in transport projects Policy makers should pay heed to these suggestions as they consider improvements in the PPP policy regime going forward Arvind Subramanian Chief Economic Adviser India div For a fast growing India infrastructure creation and operation is a great challenge and opportunity This excellent book combines theory and practice on PPPs and is very useful for professionals and students alike With case studies and current developments the authors bring out issues in India with global experiences as well A must read for infrastructure practitioners Shailesh Pathak Chief Executive Designate L T Infrastructure Development Projects Limited India s program of private participation in infrastructure attracted worldwide attention as it became one of the largest programs in emerging markets As well as the volumes of finance mobilized it garnered interest because of some of the innovative approaches developed such as Viability Gap Funding The Indian PPP story is well captured in this book which also makes the point that India is seeing project cancellations and failures rise The authors analyze the factors behind this and point the way to a more robust PPP market that learns from the experiences of the past Clive Harris Practice Manager Public Private Partnerships World Bank div A Critique of the World Development Report 1994 Raisuddin Ahmed, International Food Policy Research Institute, 1996* World Development Indicators ,2000 Infrastructure Finance Henry A.
