Craig, Theodore W. Schlie, 1977      Innovation Through Technical and Scientific Information , 1989-02-22 This volume examines the role of scientific and technical information in the innovation process The authors are primarily concerned with federally supported scientific and technical information which can be used to improve technology development for nondefense purposes and thus help improve the international economic competitiveness of the United States As the authors note at the outset the federal government already makes a substantial investment in creating scientific and technical information Their study is designed to first evaluate the ways in which this investment can be better used to improve our innovation capacity and then to assess the policy implications for the federal government and private sector R D firms Divided into three principal parts the book begins by discussing the relationship between information and innovation with particular emphasis on the use of information in the private sector Part II characterizes existing federal policy related to information technology transfer and innovation and examines whether federally supported R D is responsive to the needs of technological development and economic competitiveness The final section addresses federal strategies to improve the use of federal R D in these areas Throughout the authors pay special attention to issues surrounding the relationships between information providers and users An important contribution to the ongoing debate on U S competitiveness abroad this book offers important new insights into the ways in which government policy might be redesigned to help foster higher levels of technological innovation among U S firms      Landscape Architecture , 1916      Information Needs and Users H. N. Prasad, 1992      Management Challenges for Africa in the Twenty-First Century Felix Moses Edoho, 2001 Edoho and his contributors examine the management challenges facing African governments and businesses on the eve of a new millennium As the authors make clear Africa s future is defined by how Africa does in the 21st century For Africa a major challenge is how to effectively and efficiently manage its vast wealth Africa is not poor because it is poor it is poor because it cannot manage its development process The shortages of managerial knowledge skills and talents are pervasive Consequently the region lacks the ability to organize production and run operations effectively and efficiently The task of developing managerial manpower in Africa is not only imperative it is urgent After outlining theoretical and applied perspectives on management the volume examines the public and private sector planning and management It then explores the globalization of management technology provides case studies of African management dilemmas looks at management ethics and morality and concludes with an analysis of the role of management in African national development As the authors make clear abundant resources will not of themselves usher in an African economic renaissance Africa needs skills to identify and analyze its resources to undertake investment and to establish and run all kinds of organizations Until Africa develops its indigenous managerial talents development will continue to be elusive and the process traumatizing An important resource for scholars students and policy makers involved with African economic development      Engineering Proceedings , 1927
