Victorian Printer:

Author and Printer in Victorian England Allan C. Dooley, 1992 Author and Printer in Victorian England demonstrates that printing technology shapes texts. The technology involved was a nineteenth century revolution in printing methods: the texts were classic literary works by Victorian authors. What was at stake was textual control: who would decide how the text would read: author, compositor, printer, s, reader, or publisher. In a unique fusion of literary history and printing history, Allan C. Dooley explores the interactions between individual authors and their publishers and printers. He takes the reader through each stage of a work's development, illustrating how authors attempted to perfect and protect their writings from compositional manuscript through stereotyped reprints. His analysis includes details of a wide range of technical innovations and changes in practices in the printing of books between the development of printing machines in the 1830s and 1840s and the introduction of the Linotype in the 1890s. Drawing on the experiences of leading Victorian authors, he shows how nineteenth century printing practices both enhanced and diminished writers' abilities to control texts. He reveals that much more was under their control than has commonly been believed, and that many authors took advantage of printing technologies in order to gain and maintain control over the texts of their works. But new kinds of errors and new sources of inaccuracy were introduced by the technology as well.

The Victorian Printer Graham Hudson, 1996 This is the story of printing between 1800 and the early 1900s, a period that brought great changes to the trade. The wooden hand press was replaced by the iron press, it in turn to be supplanted by platen and cylinder machines which afforded precise register and colouring. Working the plain Roman types of the eighteenth century gave way to characterful fat faces and Egyptians, and with the art printing movement of the 1880s typography became ever more complex. In decorative printing the century began with the engraved copper plate supreme, but by mid-century engraving was in decline, supplanted by lithography which was to facilitate colour printing of great quality through the chromolitho process. The printer of 1800 could be jack of several different trades: printer of everything from handbills to books and newspapers, and likely as not grocer and travel agent as well. But the new century brought increasing specialism, so that by c. 1860 book, newspaper, and jobbing printing were virtually separate trades, and it is with the last, the printing of tradesman's cards and billheads, music covers, playbills, greeting cards, and other ephemera that this book is chiefly concerned.
