The background of the cover is a photograph of a long, empty concrete walkway on a bridge. The walkway is flanked by a metal railing on the left and a concrete barrier on the right. A picnic table is visible on the right side of the walkway. In the distance, a large concrete bridge structure spans across the frame. The sky is filled with dramatic, dark clouds, and the sun is setting on the horizon, creating a warm glow. The overall mood is contemplative and serene.

Eastern regions Second Temple Judaism was centralized with Jerusalem as its central space and seat of priestly authority In post 70 rabbinic Judaism on the other hand connections between rabbis could be established through mutual visits and second and third degree contacts only Mobility formed the basis of the establishment of a decentralized rabbinic network in Palestine and Babylonia in late antiquity Numerous narrative and halakhic traditions indicate the importance of mobility for communication and the exchange of knowledge amongst rabbis It is argued that the rabbis who were most mobile sat at the nodal points of the rabbinic network and elicited the largest amount of influence They would have combined business travel with scholarly exchange Scholars journeys between Palestine and Babylonia are viewed within the wider context of Rome and Persia s economic and cultural exchange in which Jews just like Christians may have played the role of intermediaries
