Theories of Exploitation Andrew Reeve,1987-10 Theories of exploitation have provided a critical category in social theory as central issues in both liberalism and Marxism Going beyond the traditional contention between liberal and Marxist theorists this collection of original essays provides a thorough introduction to the main themes in modern notions of exploitation and explores theories about the circumstances in which exploitation occurs The contributors analyze some of the classic theorists such as the writers of the Scottish Enlightenment the Ricardian Socialists mutualists and Marx They bring forward the concerns of these theorists by contrasting contemporary liberal theories and theories based on the idea that socialism or communism is ethically superior to capitalism Comprehensive cogent and concise this valuable volume will be essential reading for theorists and their students in both sociology and political science a generally stimulating collection for those engaged with the issue Political Studies This collection provides a theoretically and historically balanced comprehensive scope of its field of political economy An important addition Choice This collection must find a place on the bookshelf of anyone working on problems of exploitation and justice Ethics This book examines carefully and challengingly many aspects of the definition and theory of exploitation It is well worth reading and pondering Science Society      Capitalist Value Chains Benjamin Selwyn, Professor of Economic and Political Geography with a Focus on Bioeconomy and Sustainability Christin Bernhold, Postdoctoral Research Associate Dara Leyden, 2026-01-14 In this compelling book the authors show how the mainstream notion of Global Value Chains obscures their capitalist character and introduce the alternative concept of Capitalist Value Chains These chains are premised upon the internationalized exploitation of labour the destruction of nature and underpinned by violent geopolitics      Value Ane Exploitation, some Recent Debates. Discussion Paper. University of uncovering the exploitation of labor and class in the Global South Winner of the 2018 Paul M Sweezy Paul A Baran Memorial Award for original work regarding the political economy of imperialism Value Chains examines the exploitation of labor in the Global South Focusing on the issue of labor within global value chains this book offers a deft empirical analysis of unit labor costs that is closely related to Marx's own theory of exploitation Value Chains uncovers the concrete processes through which multinational corporations located primarily in the Global North capture value from the Global South We are brought face to face with various state of the art corporate strategies that enforce economical and flexible production including labor management methods aimed to reassert the imperial dominance of the North while continuing the dependency of the Global South and polarizing the global economy Case studies of Indonesian suppliers exemplify the growing burden borne by the workers of the Global South whose labor creates the surplus value that enriches the capitalists of the North as well as the secondary capitals of the South Today those who control the value chains and siphon off the profits are primarily financial interests with vast economic and political power the power that must be broken if the global working class is to liberate itself Suwandi's book depicts in concrete detail the relations of unequal exchange that structure today's world economy This study up to date and richly documented puts labor and class back at the center of our understanding of the world capitalist system

Value, Price, and Exploitation Simon Mohun, Roberto Veneziani, 2017 This paper tries to clarify the logical structure of the relationship between labor values and prices from an axiomatic perspective The famous transformation problem is interpreted as an impossibility result for a specific interpretation of value theory based on specific assumptions and definitions A comprehensive review of recent literature is provided which shows that there are various theoretically relevant and logically consistent alternative interpretations based on different assumptions and definitions

Surplus Value, Distribution and Exploitation Alberto Battistini, 2007

Value Creation Through the Exploitation of Knowledge Assets: Economic Implications for Firm Strategy, 2004 Resumen Los ensayos contenidos en esta disertación doctoral estudian como la explotación de activos intangibles tales como patentes y propiedad intelectual pueden contribuir a la creación de valor y fortalecer las ventajas competitivas de la firma En particular se busca estudiar las diferentes estrategias seguidas por las empresas para explotar el valor creado a través de la innovación examinando como la incertidumbre de mercado y los activos necesarios para explotar el la innovación determinan la decisión de comercialización El primer capítulo presenta un modelo teórico que estudia la decisión de comercializar una patente como una opción para invertir El segundo capítulo aborda el problema de comercialización a través de una licencia cuando el nivel de incertidumbre de mercado es alta Finalmente el último capítulo examina como los spillovers entre diferentes grupos de investigación afectan el valor de las innovaciones creadas

Abstract The essays in this thesis are concerned to study the potential linkages between Firms business strategies and how the exploitation of intellectual assets determines the way innovation can help in building competitive advantages and increasing firm value In particular I focus on the different strategies employed by firms to exploit the value created by innovation examining how market uncertainty and complementary assets affect commercialization decisions The first chapter of the thesis develops a theoretical model that studies the decision to commercialize as an option to invest The second chapter is an empirical test to find how market uncertainty can affect the likelihood that a disembodied patent will be licensed Finally the last chapter studies how knowledge spillovers affect the value of patented inventions Exploitation, Unequal Exchange, and Dependency Paul O. Otubusin,1992 There is no more central concept in contemporary Marxian theory than that of exploitation Western analytical Marxists have refined and revised the concept Third World theorists have extended it from class to country Political regimes have drawn policy conclusions Dr Otubusin has constructed a framework within which to situate these developments one which highlights the normative presuppositions of the various theorists He has managed a synthesis of a vast amount of quite diverse literature and has offered a cogent critical analysis Dr Otubusin has exploited his training in both philosophy and political science to produce a compelling piece of work Innovations from Community Research ,1994*
