Under Two Masters:

Under Two Masters N. B. Bonarjee, 1970 Imperial Footprints Sumita Mukherjee, 2026-02-26 From the Victorian era to Partition Mukherjee uncovers the unique experiences of the very youngest South Asian migrants to Britain Between 1857 and 1947 over 28 million Indians left the subcontinent to live work and study elsewhere Today India has the largest diaspora in the world with approximately 18 million Indians living overseas Though often absent from historical narratives migrant children were instrumental during the time of the British Empire in the development not only of Indian national and diasporic identities but of British identity too These children were marginalised by their political status their race and their age yet they were fundamental to historical change from the 1830s through to independence in 1947 Imperial Footprints vividly charts this history of emigration from British India to the imperial heartland through the eyes of its youngest participants From pupils sent to English boarding schools and runaway servants to sailor children and refugees of war or Partition Sumita Mukherjee reveals that these child migrants were crucial players in founding Indian communities abroad Drawing on archival records and firsthand accounts she offers a portrait of migration to Britain that pre dated the larger waves of arrivals post war Imperial Footprints challenges the assumptions of the historical voices we often foreground reflects on post colonial legacies and offers a fascinating new perspective on migration and empire
