Writers of Multicultural Fiction for Young Adults M. Daphne Kutzer, 1996-01-09 Multicultural fiction is an essential part of the American literary landscape This reference helps scholars teachers and librarians choose significant texts from both the past and present and provides guidance in approaching multicultural issues as they are discussed in fiction for young adults Included are entries for 51 writers some of whom have nearly been forgotten others who are just emerging Each entry provides biographical critical and bibliographical information while a general bibliography of works on multicultural literature concludes the book Authors included range from the nearly forgotten such as Laura Adams Armer to the newly discovered such as Graham Salisbury winner of the 1994 Scott O Dell Award for Historical Fiction The breadth of authors covered ensures an historical context for the issues raised by multiculturalism and the sections on the critical reception of each author address such important issues as the authority and authenticity of the writer to comment on a different culture Contributors are of many different ethnicities and include important scholars of children s literature lending authenticity and authority to the volume itself

Tracks Across Africa Craig Boddington, 2008-01-01 Craig Boddington s first African hunting book From Mount Kenya to the Cape chronicled his hunting exploits from 1977 to 1986 Since that time he has written a book every ten years on his African experiences Now he s back with Tracks Across Africa which chronicles his third decade of African hunting Pretty much every country open to hunting in this period saw Craig Boddington walking on its soil C A R Chad Cameroon Zimbabwe Namibia Tanzania South Africa Ethiopia and Mozambique The animals pursued are as diverse and range from mountain nyala elephant and leopard to bongo and of course buffalo There is hardly a safari where he does not hunt buffalo In these past ten years he has hunted more in Africa than most people experience in a lifetime Hey we can all dream but in the meantime we can read about it

Microbial Source Tracking: Methods, Applications, and Case Studies Charles Hagedorn, Anicet R. Blanch, Valerie J. Harwood, 2011-06-08 Understanding the origin of fecal pollution is essential in assessing potential health risks as well as for determining the actions necessary to remediate the quality of waters contaminated by fecal matter As a result microbial source tracking MST has emerged as a field that has evolved and diversified rapidly since the first approaches were described only a decade ago In response to the emergence of MST there have been three large multi laboratory method comparison studies two in the US and one in Europe plus numerous workshops book chapters and review articles dedicated to synthesizing information on the topic Furthermore a federal USEPA guide document describing the uses and limitations of MST methods was published in 2005 and a book dedicated to MST as an emerging issue in food safety was published in 2007 These documents provide a collective body of literature on MST that is both conflicting and complementary often repetitious and difficult to condense and interpret In addition it does not reflect the current diversity of MST approaches with different organisms newer methodologies such as quantitative PCR and anthropogenic chemicals nor does it embrace the scope of MST research being conducted around the world The three editors of the book all with extensive MST expertise have developed chapters and invited authors who reflect the rich diversity and truly international scope of MST The unifying theme throughout the book is the design of more standardized approaches to MST that include performance criteria regardless of method or organism plus recommendations for field study design and MST implementation The editors intend that this book will serve as a valuable reference for all those who are involved with Tracks, 1990 A Supplement to Granger's Index (1919-1928).
