Active and Healthy Aging and Quality of Life: Interventions and Outlook for the Future, volume II Shekhar Chauhan, Petra Heidler, David Jean Simon, 2024-09-10 The continuous growth of older populations as a consequence of demographic changes is a huge global challenge The growing proportion of older adults not only burdens the healthcare system specifically in developing countries but also posits a challenge at the household level specifically in nuclear and one person households For societies as a whole to avoid costly and negative effects it is crucial to increase their knowledge of how to promote good health among older adults so that they can live longer and enjoy a better quality of life Active aging is the process of optimizing opportunities for health participation and security in order to enhance quality of life as people age An active and healthy life has remained one of the most important aspirations for all people both young and older adults alike This ambition has become a genuine possibility for many due to a rising life expectancy among people of diverse attributes across the world While celebrating longer life and more financial security in later life than ever before we need to challenge how these aspirations can be sustained through our own behavioral responses and through public policy institutional reforms and innovations The challenge is to identify recommend and promote strategies and interventions that stimulate and sustain the activity independence and health of people of all ages especially older adults and in the process promote the well being and quality of life of people and make public welfare systems more sustainable

The Massachusetts register, 1989 Olfaction and Taste II T. Hayashi, 2016-02-02 Wenner Gren Center International Symposium Series Volume 8 Olfaction and Taste II covers the proceedings of the Second International Symposium held in Tokyo Japan on September 1965 This book is composed of 53 chapters that bring together theoretical and experimental studies on the chemoreception in insects other invertebrates and vertebrates from fishes to the monkey and their significance in delineating human olfaction and taste Other chapters deal with the study of the chemoreceptive organs and their related parts of the nervous system which will be helpful in the analysis of the function of other sensory organs and their neural connections This book also discusses the evidence that the epithelium of the front of the tongue has other properties than that of the back of the tongue as far as the conversion of its cells into gustatory cells is concerned under the influence of the outgrowing gustatory nerve fibers The remaining chapters describe the transmission and decoding of coded information from the receptors in the central nervous system This book is of value to biologists physiologists and research workers who are interested in the complex mechanism of olfaction and taste
