Stalled Democracy:

Stalled Democracy Eva Bellin, 2018-07-05 In this ambitious book Eva Bellin examines the dynamics of democratization in late developing countries where the process has stalled Bellin focuses on the pivotal role of social forces and particularly the reluctance of capital and labor to champion democratic transition contrary to the expectations of political economists versed in earlier transitions Bellin argues that the special conditions of late development most notably the political paradoxes created by state sponsorship fatally limit class commitment to democracy In many developing countries she contends those who are empowered by capitalist industrialization become the allies of authoritarianism rather than the agents of democratic reform Bellin generates her propositions from close study of a singular case of stalled democracy Tunisia Capital and labor's complicity in authoritarian relapse in that country poses a puzzle The author's explanation of that case is made more general through comparison with the cases of other countries including Mexico Indonesia South Korea Turkey and Egypt Stalled Democracy also explores the transformative capacity of state sponsored industrialization By drawing on a range of real world examples Bellin illustrates the ability of developing countries to reconfigure state society relations redistribute power more evenly in society and erode the peremptory power of the authoritarian state even where democracy is stalled Accepting Authoritarianism Teresa Wright, 2010-03-08 Why hasn't the emergence of capitalism led China's citizenry to press for liberal democratic change This book argues that China's combination of state led development late industrialization and socialist legacies have affected popular perceptions of socioeconomic mobility economic dependence on the state and political options giving citizens incentives to perpetuate the political status quo and disincentives to embrace liberal democratic change Wright addresses the ways in which China's political and economic development shares broader features of state led late industrialization and post socialist transformation with countries as diverse as Mexico India Tunisia Indonesia South Korea Brazil Russia and Vietnam With its detailed analysis of China's major socioeconomic groups private entrepreneurs state sector workers private sector workers professionals and students and farmers Accepting Authoritarianism is an up to date comprehensive and coherent text on the evolution of state society relations in reform era China Faith in Moderation Jillian Schwedler, 2006-06-19 Does political inclusion produce ideological moderation Schwedler argues that examining political behaviour alone provides insufficient evidence of moderation because it leaves open the possibility that political actors might act as if they are moderate while harbouring radical agendas Through a comparative study of the Islamic Action Front party in Jordan and the Islah party in Yemen she argues that the IAF in Jordan has become more moderate through participation in pluralist political processes while the Islah party has not The variation is explained in part by internal group organization and decision making processes but particularly by the ways in which the IAF has been able to justify its new pluralist practices on Islamic terms while the Islah party has not Based on nearly four years of field research in Jordan and Yemen Schwedler contributes both an important theory of ideological moderation and detail about these powerful Islamist

Weapons of the Wealthy Scott B. Radnitz, 2012-07-12 Mass mobilization is among the most dramatic and inspiring forces for political change. When ordinary citizens take to the streets in large numbers, they can undermine and even topple undemocratic governments, as the recent wave of peaceful uprisings in several postcommunist states has shown. However, investigation into how protests are organized can sometimes reveal that the origins and purpose of people power are not as they appear on the surface. In particular, protest can be used as an instrument of elite actors to advance their own interests rather than those of the masses. Weapons of the Wealthy focuses on the region of post-Soviet Central Asia to investigate the causes of elite-led protest. In nondemocratic states, economic and political opportunities can give rise to elites who are independent of the regime yet vulnerable to expropriation and harassment from above. In conditions of political uncertainty, elites have an incentive to cultivate support in local communities, which elites can then wield as a weapon against a predatory regime. Scott Radnitz builds on his in-depth fieldwork and analysis of the spatial distribution of protests to demonstrate how Kyrgyzstan's post-independence development laid the groundwork for elite-led mobilization, whereas Uzbekistan's did not. Elites often have the wherewithal and the motivation to trigger protests, as is borne out by Radnitz's more than one hundred interviews with those who participated in, observed, or avoided protests. Even Kyrgyzstan's 2005 Tulip Revolution, which brought about the first peaceful change of power in Central Asia since independence, should be understood as a strategic action of elites rather than as an expression of the popular will. This interpretation helps account for the undemocratic nature of the successor government and the 2010 uprising that toppled it. It also serves as a warning for scholars to look critically at bottom-up political change.

Peacebuilding and Post-War Transitions Lisa

Gross, 2017-02-17 This book asks how and under what conditions external domestic interactions impact on peacebuilding outcomes during transitions to peace and democracy. Why do so many peacebuilding interventions in post-war states result in stalled transitions despite heavy international support? This book suggests a new interaction-based explanation for this puzzle and proposes an analytical framework of peacebuilding interactions. Based on eight cases of peacebuilding interactions, it demonstrates that the limited rationality of the actors involved in external domestic interactions influenced the post-war transition results in Kosovo. Drawing on interviews and focus groups, the insights build on the process tracing of peacebuilding reforms in the area of Local Governance and Police Reform with a specific focus at the local level. Through an in-depth analysis of peacebuilding negotiations, this book shows how peacebuilders' use of ad hoc interaction tactics intended as heuristics to simplify decision making in overly complex post-war environments have the unintended effect of offering domestic actors additional leeway to prioritise their domestic agenda, often at the expense of achieving full democratisation. The resulting consequences of these actions mean that even in highly resourced interventions such as those implemented in Kosovo, stalled transitions become one of the most likely outcomes of the peacebuilding process. This book will be of much interest to students of peacebuilding, war and conflict studies, European politics, security studies, and IR in general.

Businessmen, Clientelism, and Authoritarianism in Egypt Safinaz El Tarouty, 2016-04-29 After the ousting of former Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak in February 2011 much debate surrounded the reasons for the former regime's longevity and its collapse Here Safinaz El Tarouty provides an original contribution to the study of authoritarianism in Egypt by focusing on the role of businessmen in authoritarian survival As the regime intensified neoliberal economic reforms that led to social deprivation and frustration among increasing numbers of Egyptian citizens they co-opted businessmen in order to defuse challenges and buttress the regime constructing a new political economy of authoritarianism Extending the existing literature on clientelism El Tarouty creates a typology of regime-businessmen relations to describe the multiple mechanisms of co-optation in the context of economic liberalization Ultimately though these businessmen proved too narrow a constituency to provide legitimacy to the regime and in fact formed one of the reasons for its collapse

Human Rights, Power and Civic Action Bård A. Andreassen, Gordon Crawford, 2013-07-18 Human Rights, Power and Civic Action examines the interrelationship between struggles for human rights and the dynamics of power focusing on situations of poverty and oppression in developing countries It is argued that the concept of power is a relatively neglected one in the study of rights-based approaches to development especially the ways in which structures and relations of power can limit human rights advocacy Therefore this book focuses on how local and national struggles for rights have been constrained by power relations and structural inequalities as well as the extent to which civic action has been able to challenge alter or transform such power structures and simultaneously to enhance protection of people's basic human rights Contributors examine and compare struggles to advance human rights by non-governmental actors in Cambodia China Ghana Kenya South Africa and Zimbabwe The country case studies analyse structures of power responsible for the negation and denial of human rights as well as how rights-promoting organisations challenge such structures Utilising a comparative approach the book provides empirically grounded studies leading to new theoretical understanding of the interrelationships between human rights struggles power and poverty reduction Human Rights, Power and Civic Action will be of interest to students and scholars of human rights politics power development and governance
