The Runner'S Book of Haiku Steve K. Bertrand,2018-04-18 This year marks the fiftieth year of my involvement in the sport of long distance running Looking back I guess it started with a present under the Christmas tree in 1967 I was twelve years old And inside a brightly wrapped box with ribbon and bow was a pair of Onitsuka Tiger training shoes My parents found them on sale at the local weed and feed store which just happened to carry shoes for twelve dollars They were white with blue and red piping At the time they were the fanciest pair of sneakers Id ever seen I slipped them on my feet and found the shoes to my liking Somewhere between presents and turkey dinner I got the notion in my head to try the shoes out I decided to run twelve times around our block one loop for every year I was old Thus began my running career I never looked back Little did I know at the time that the sport of distance running would take me around the world as an athlete and a coach At the time I also didnt realize the personal journey I would undergo It has become a journey of mind body and spirit Like life it has been a journey of setbacks and successes And somewhere along the way my passion for running and writing merged The late Dr George Sheehan author of Running Being stated There are times when I am not sure whether I am a runner who writes or a writer who runs Either way writing has become my way of preserving and making sense of running experiences Each daily journeywhether it be running the forests mountains beaches farmlands deserts towns or rural neighborhoodshas provided inspiration for my writing Other passions in my life have come and gone but the pure joy of my breath heartbeat and footfall intermingling with the landscape has remained I am now and will always be a runner In their own way this collection of over one thousand haiku tells a bit about myself my life and what I have come to know through the sport There is something here for everyone passionate about long distance running
