Strategy Formulation and Implementation in Manufacturing Organisations Nandakumar Mankavil Kovil Veetil,2008 A key preoccupation of strategy as a field of study is the identification of sources of heterogeneous performance among competing firms The main theories of strategy include contingency theory Porter's positioning theory resource based view and its derivatives and environmental theories and offer varying views explaining the potential reasons for deriving superior rent Empirical studies in the field of strategic management have mainly focussed on two main streams of research i the relationship between how strategy is formulated in a firm and firm performance and ii the relationship between the content of strategy and firm performance A third area of interest is strategy implementation but unlike the other two areas strategy implementation has not received much empirical interest The results of the previous studies examining the relationship between strategy formulation and performance and strategy content and performance have been inconclusive Some studies have reported positive relationships while others found no relationship The previous studies also suffered from a number of methodological inadequacies such as inconsistent operationalisation of the constructs unclear definition of industry sectors and small sample size Only a few studies have focussed on UK based organisations In addition there is a dearth of empirical research using UK based engineering organisations The study reported in this thesis examines the impact of strategy formulation strategy content and strategy implementation on organisational performance all within a single study As far as the author was able to establish by examining the previous studies none of the previous studies have looked into strategic planning business level strategy and strategy implementation simultaneously in a single study Furthermore this study considers the moderating effects of environment on the relationship between strategy formulation and performance and strategy content and performance It also assesses the moderating effect of organisational structure on the relationship between strategy content and performance Because of the integrated approach taken this study makes a significant contribution to the literature This study also addresses some of the methodological shortcomings of the previous studies by clearly defining the industry sectors using a good sample size and by using properly validated constructs It gains significance mainly due to its focus on UK based organisations and helps theory development because a robust theory is crucially dependent on empirical studies representing different industry sectors and geographical regions Based on the literature review a conceptual model of strategy formulation and implementation was proposed and the hypotheses to be tested were derived These hypotheses were classified into two groups namely i hypotheses for validating the findings of previous studies and ii hypotheses which have not been tested in previous studies Hypotheses in the first group have examined the impact of strategic planning business level strategy and planning of strategy implementation on organisational performance Hypotheses in the second group have examined the interrelationships between strategic planning business level strategy and strategy implementation The development of the survey instrument involved a number of processes including adaptation of the constructs from previous studies review by a panel of experts and a pilot study This process ensured content and face validity of the measures Using the validated questionnaire a postal survey was conducted among the chief executives of manufacturing organisations in the UK belonging to the electrical and mechanical engineering sectors Appropriate analytical techniques were used to test the hypotheses and Partial least squares PLS which is a structural equation modelling technique was used to test the conceptual model Organisational performance was measured using two constructs namely objective fulfilment and relative competitive performance The study indicated that strategic planning has a strong positive relationship with objective fulfilment and its relationship with relative competitive performance is not very strong It was found that strategic planning helps organisations to improve their relative competitive performance in highly dynamic as well as highly hostile environments The results indicated that organisations that had a clear business level strategy by adopting one of the strategies namely cost related differentiation or integrated strategies performed better than stuck in the middle companies both in terms of objective fulfilment and relative competitive performance It was also found that external environment moderates the relationship between business level strategy and performance to some extent A cost related strategy helps organisations to improve their performance in environments with low levels of hostility A differentiation strategy is helpful in improving relative competitive performance in highly hostile environments as well as highly dynamic environments It was found that an organic structure is helpful for organisations having a clear strategy to improve their performance The planning of strategy implementation had a significant positive relationship with both the performance measures When the conceptual model was tested using PLS it was found that some of the relationships in the model were not statistically significant The model indicated that it is not possible to effectively predict relative competitive performance using the variables used in this study However the model indicated that objective fulfilment can be predicted using strategic planning and the planning of strategy implementation Most of the previous studies have examined bivariate relationships The structural model indicates that some of the bivariate relationships become insignificant when strategic planning is studied along with business level strategy and strategy implementation simultaneously The findings of this study are extremely useful to CEOs and senior managers as they confirm the importance of strategic planning and the need for properly planning and prioritising strategy implementation in order to enhance organisational performance It also highlights the importance of clearly defining the business level strategies for improving performance Some of the main limitations of this study include the use of single respondents its focus on only two industry sectors sole dependence on the survey data and common method variance These limitations and measures taken to overcome common method variance are discussed in the thesis This thesis comprises of eleven chapters which are organised into four sections Chapter 1 provides an introduction to the study It explains the background of the study and presents the conceptual model and study objectives Part 1 contains a comprehensive literature review which includes strategy development process strategic planning and performance business level strategy and performance and a review of strategy implementation literature Part 2 describes the main aspects concerning research methodology and survey design Part 3 provides the details of data analysis carried out and the results obtained by testing the hypotheses Part 4 provides a summary of discussions outlined in this thesis and the conclusions derived

Management Arthur G. Bedeian,1993 Effect of Strategic Management on the Performance of Small and Medium Scale Enterprises (SMEs) in South-east Region of Nigeria Udeme Usanga,2023-09-04 Academic Paper from the year 2021 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance course Management Sciences language English abstract This study examined the impact of strategic management on SMEs performance in South east Nigeria A survey of 398 respondents were randomly selected from Small and Medium Enterprises SMEs that registered with the Ministry of Commerce and Industry in Abia Anambra Ebonyi Enugu and Imo States were used for the study Well structured questionnaire was use for collection of data from respondents Hypotheses were formulated and data analysis was performed with the using Frequencies Percentages and Regression Analysis Result reveals that majority of respondents are male 57% married 69% with Secondary education 45% with household size of 6 10 Persons 45% with SME experience between 6 10 years 35 68% Majority of enterprises in the study area were small sized businesses 51 5% providing services 65% with fixed assets in buildings factories including machinery equipment worth N2 5 million 26% current asset base of cash draft at Banks and inventory raw materials worth N2 5 million 31% with human capital asset number of employees of 1 5 workers 51 5% and number of branches 88% About 96 5% did not apply any of the management strategy practices in their operations Details of the results on the effects of strategic management practices on SMEs Performance further showed an average mean of 4 19 The R2 of 74% of the variation in the dependent variable employee training and job satisfaction is caused by the explanatory variable Planning and Organizational Structure with a probability value t cal 34 014 environmental analysis strategy and resource allocation on market share 92% with t cal 66 76 implementation strategy and Customer Satisfaction 99% t cal 165 015 The R2 of 860 about 84% of the variation in the dependent variable Sales Revenue Profitability by evaluation strategy with regression result t cal 49 496

indicate a positive effect Based on the findings the study concluded that the strategic planning process has not been fully implemented by SMEs operators in the South east Region of Nigeria The study therefore recommends that SMEs operators managers should be motivated to align their performance to the planned goals in their strategic plan If these elements are consciously integrated into SME business plans and judiciously implemented there would be a stimulating effect on the overall performance of these enterprises thus triggering growth profit and sustainability Controlling for Competitiveness Fredrik Nilsson,Nils-Göran Olve,Anders Parment,2011 Competitive International Strategy Anders Pehrsson,2020-11-15 Contemporary businesses are exposed to global competition enhanced by new information technology and liberalized cross border transactions in many industries This introduces a new competitive dynamic influenced by actors in developed and emerging markets The dynamic puts major demands on executives as they consider future moves that support strategic initiatives The context of intensified global competition requires attention from practicing and aspiring leaders in international business organizations Drawing on contemporary research Competitive International Strategy Key Implementation Issues addresses international business strategy formulation and implementation in the global competitive market It captures the essential strategy components by elaborating on the implementation of corporate integration and local responsiveness This is considered a vital dichotomy in the development of international business strategies Essential components include competition context firm s resources strategy directions and competence implementation issues and competitiveness The book includes several detailed company cases Bridging the strategy formulation and implementation is crucial for the ultimate success of international business firms This book will be of great value to students at an advanced level academics and reflective practitioners in the fields of strategic management leadership and international business
