Urban Classroom Portraits:

Urban Classroom Portraits Mary E. Bredemeier, 1988 Urban Classroom Portraits begins with a summary of the research on effective schools and classrooms and outlines a theory for urban education Seventeen profiles of successful urban teachers follow based on observations and interviews these often let the teachers speak for themselves The last chapter considers the range of skills and personal qualities which enable some teachers to be successful against the odds

Learning In Small Moments Daniel Meier, 1997 Chronicles the ups and downs of two young first grade teachers in an urban public school Through rich detailed portraits excerpts from teacher journals student work and lived memories and recollections Daniel Meier shows that the heart of teaching and learning in our culturally diverse urban schools is tied to the overall quality of human interaction in the classroom I know that every classroom teacher will read this with bated breath perhaps even with a small knot in the pit of their stomach at times What will the kids do next Will it have a happy ending I think parents too regardless of race or class will recognize their teachers their children and their schools in this account From the Foreword by Deborah Meier I tell the story of our year together because teachers educators parents and others are always in need of personal direct accounts from the classroom I hope readers will see and hear and feel the voices in this story according to their own experiences and hopes and dreams for our children and schools From the Introduction

Portraits, Personas, and Representations of the Self Lynn D. Bailey, 2014 The purpose of this study is to better understand how students see themselves reflected in their education and what impact a culturally relevant lesson involving making art and discussing social issues has on making connections to the world around them I am a white female art teacher in an urban public high school in Chicago where I have worked for eight years My mixed gender classes consist of an average of 31 students each 99.4% of whom are African American and range in age from 15-18 all of these students are involved in this study This main question guides the research What occurs in an urban high school classroom when students discuss question and otherwise grapple with the complexity of self defining cultural relevance In this project I introduce to my students a group of eight contemporary black artists ranging from community members to artists from England and South Africa through the theme of Portraits Personas and Representations of the Self I was curious about how learning about these artists would be meaningful to the students in my classes Will the students locate shared experiences and histories with the artists and with each other In what ways will this project connect art curriculum to student interests and definitions of culture Will it result in any change to their understanding and appreciation of art I used an action research methodology to conduct the inquiry in my own classroom I collected data via pre surveys written reflections and assessments observations and conversations with students I provided students with handouts to record information and ideas about the artists we discussed They also completed a painting using elements from the artists introduced in the unit Data from these written sources helped guide the discussions we had about the artists in the classroom and assisted students in developing a sketch of their own portrait My findings indicate that students drew connections between themselves their communities and related characteristics of the artists work as they explained in their self assessments and as it was reflected in their paintings My research contributes to the field of art education in the development of curriculum that reflects the students they teach not only through race or ethnicity but also takes into consideration their interests and self determined understandings of culture Through this research I further understand the importance of providing students with meaningful art education that is grounded in their lives

English in Urban Classrooms Gunther R. Kress,2005 This ground breaking text spans a range of issues central to school English It extends not only to the spoken and written language of classrooms but also to other important modes of representation and communication

Urban Education with an Attitude Lauri Johnson,Mary E. Finn,Rebecca Lewis,2005-03-24 Contending that urban education reform will fail without public engagement and a commitment to social justice the contributors challenge urban educators to become accountable to their students and the communities they serve

BOOK JACKET Portrait of the Artist as an Urban Teen Gwendolyn Yvette Larsen,1996 The Newark Teacher Strikes Steve Golin,2002 After interviewing more than fifty teachers who were on the front lines during these strikes historian Steve Golin concludes that another equally important agenda ignored until now was on the table These professionals wanted a voice in the decision making process

BOOK JACKET Success in the Urban Classroom,2002 Talking Back and Looking Forward Paul C. Gorski,Rosanna M. Salcedo,Julie Landsman,2016-03-08 As schools grow more and more vulnerable to the whims of profiteers and as a result become less and less a sacred public space of learning and justice the voices of everyday educators and students are increasingly marginalized This is the tyranny of neoliberal school reform silence the people who know education the people committed to equity and justice and elevate the voices and desires of the privileged few whose knowledge of education is peripheral and profit driven Talking Back and Moving Forward An Education Revolution in Poetry and Prose is a collective response to this tyranny a collecting rallying cry for reclaiming our schools It is a chorus of voices from teachers educators and educational justice advocates who refuse to be silenced who are standing up and responding to the imposition of damaging school reform initiatives Unconfined by the conventions of the traditional scholarly voice the contributors use poetry memoir short stories and photography choosing the expressions that most effectively capture their experiences and their demands for educational and social justice

John Henry Newman's Rhetoric John Britt,1989 This book examines Newman s rhetoric in a number of ways by rhythm and structure by principles states of mind and methods of thought by visual analysis and by typology Rhythm and structure indicate the hidden art of his rhetoric Principles states of mind and methods of thought reveal the deeper basis of his rhetoric Carl Jung s typology discloses the reasons for agreement and disagreement in communication Visualization enables the reader to grasp why the usually hidden art of the work has such an impact Through the unity of these ways of examining Newman s rhetoric the reader discovers a new organon for reading discriminately not only Newman but other classical and erudite authors Quest ,1997 Talking with Readers Avon Crismore,1989 This book is about metadiscourse the rhetorical acts used by authors as they talk with readers in order to guide rather than inform them and build solidarity Metadiscourse in use is illustrated by a variety of written texts spanning the period from 500 B C to the present Perspectives from rhetoric speech communication linguistics literature philosophy and psychology are used to begin building a theory of metadiscourse The theory is tested with two empirical studies having practical classroom applications a descriptive analysis of metadiscourse use in social studies school and non school texts and an experimental study of the effects of metadiscourse on students learning and attitudes Urban School Days Alexander Moore,1964 Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,1989-05 Small Press Record of Books in Print Len Fulton,1994 Urban Narratives David J. Connor,2008 Urban Narratives foregrounds previously silenced voices of young people of color who are labeled disabled Overrepresented in special education classes yet underrepresented in educational research these students the largest group within segregated special education classes share their perceptions of the world and their place within it Eight portraits in progress consisting of their own words and framed by their poetry and drawings reveal compelling insights about life inside and out of the American urban education system The book uses an intersectional analysis to examine how power circulates in society throughout and among historical cultural institutional and interpersonal domains impacting social academic and economic opportunities for individuals and expanding or circumscribing their worlds Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1975 Mapmaking with Children David Sobel,1998 In this book David Sobel explains how mapmaking has relevance across the curriculum Urban Profile ,1989
