

TIPS FOR WRITING SUCCESSFULLY IN COLLEGE

Being a competent writer is among the most challenging parts of taking a college class for the first time. Writing essays requires time and patience. Most of the time when I write an essay, my mind goes blank, or I run out of ideas to write about, but I have learned some techniques to prevent these things from happening. Throughout my years in high school, I have been practicing writing essays, but this class has been a great improvement to my writing process. I have created a list of advice that have helped me gain new skills for writing in a college class.

#1: PRIOR TO WRITING, IT IS IMPORTANT TO BRAINSTORM.

Brainstorming helps writers generate ideas before beginning to write about a topic. It can reduce writing anxiety and help focus on the relevant content. It is an important part in the writing process that I consider to be as the first step you take when preparing to write an essay. The process of brainstorming can be used to come up with topics and ideas for writing.

This is a strategy for organizing your thoughts before writing them on paper. In page 78 of the book "EVERYONE'S AN AUTHOR" it states that "brainstorming is a way to generate ideas without worrying about whether they're useful or not." It helps get rid of ideas that you thought was ideal for the essay but then realized they were not effective. Since you now know what the main topics you are going to write about are, brainstorming also helps you stay focus when writing. I used to never brainstorm because I thought it was useless. I take this step before writing any essay and I have realized that it has been a great guidance. I had never felt more prepared to write. In addition to helping, you write a perfect final paper, brainstorming allows you to develop creative skills you may have not known you had before.

#2 EVERY WRITER A HAS DIFFERENT STYLE

There are many styles of writing, and none of them are necessarily better than the other. We are taught how to form simple sentences while we are first learning to write, and later, taught to write academic papers. We are exposed to a broader variety of writing styles throughout the year. It is common to think that these new writing styles are improper because you are used to writing in only one style. This is incorrect because, for example academic writing is not necessarily more proper than free writing. It is an accurate way of writing as long as the same style is used consistently throughout the whole essay and the rules of that style are followed. I choose my writing style depending on what I am writing about and the purpose. For example, for my personal diary entry, I wrote it in an informal tone since it was first-person point of view and
