Training Development For Hospitality Industry:

Training and Development for the Hospitality Industry Debra F. Cannon, Catherine M. Gustafson, American Hotel & Lodging Educational Institute, American Hotel and Lodging Educational Institute Staff, & Lodging Assoc American Lodging Assoc, American Hotel & Lodging Association, 2012-05-30 Every hospitality organization needs well trained employees Use this text to teach your students how to be excellent trainers who understand the role training plays in the organization how to design it and how to deliver it Students will learn How to measure training as an investment in the organization Assessment methods to determine training needs Instructional design techniques and Management of Training and Development in Hospitality Industry Archana Acharya, Managing Employee Attitudes and Behaviors in the Tourism and Hospitality Industry Salih Kusluvan, 2003 The tourism industry of which the hospitality industry is the core element is one of the largest and the fastest growing industries world wide According to World Tourism Organisation forecasts the industry will continue to grow and employ more people in the twenty first century In parallel with the growth of the tourism and hospitality industry world wide consumer expectations and demands for quality are rising while consumer tastes are varying on the one hand and competition among the firms both nationally and internationally is intensifying on the other In this business environment of heightened consumer expectations distinct market segments that demand unique products and services and stiff competition tourism and hospitality organisations are looking for ways to excel in service quality customer satisfaction competition and performance This book takes the view that employees are one of the most if not the most important resources or assets for tourism and hospitality organisations in their endeavour to provide excellent service meet and exceed consumer expectations achieve competitive advantage and exceptional organisational performance The purpose of this book is to emphasise the critical role of employees for tourism and hospitality organisations and to examine the ways and means of managing their attitudes and behaviours for the mutual benefit of both parties tourism and hospitality organisations and their employees Human Resources and Tourism Darren Lee-Ross, Josephine Pryce, 2010-05-07 The tourism industry provides employment for literally millions of individuals Despite global recessions terrorist attacks and other catastrophes this is likely to remain unchanged in the long term Resilience of this nature helps tourism remain a major global employer in both developed and emerging economies The important role played by tourism workers cannot be overstated some argue that they actually define the product on offer Accordingly mediocre or poor performance gives rise to an unremarkable service experience or one to which customers would not return willingly The inextricable link between the calibre and performance of staff and service delivery is a key issue for human resources management This challenge is further complicated by a number of structural characteristics including dominance of unaffiliated small to medium sized organizations high levels of labour turnover and a heterogeneous workforce with individuals having a wide variety of cultural differences and employment aspirations This book accounts for the above factors

using an approach which is part prescriptive and part enquiry or research oriented In doing so espoused HRM convention may be understood against HRM in practice Additionally by using this method we hope to instil a sense of enquiry in the reader This is a necessary intellectual asset for the future and will also allow the individual to make a positive contribution in the workplace

Training and Development of the Employees in the Hotel Industry Kamal Sharma,2021 The hotel industry is experiencing a lot of challenges to develop the training department of food and beverage service employees This is not only the concern for the hospitality industry but academicians and researchers are also showing interest in this area The main purpose of this study is to filter the difference between floor training and theoretical study in hotel management institutions For the said purpose we have collected the information from the secondary data which was collected from internet sources shows the feedback of training among trainers and trainees of different institutions and hotels It was observed that students and teachers have shown a keen interest in the subject when it is taught with a constructive approach The significance of research outcome is to analyze the importance of providing updated knowledge hands on learning and giving choices to the trainees and the trainers to design curriculum according to the local or national demands and needs which could be aligned with the sustainable development goals of the United Nations UN while teaching and learning only from books lead to outdated hospitality industry Our research is a platform to focus on employee training by providing the right tool Technology plays an important role in the industry and this can be introduced as part of the curriculum of teacher training programs so the students and teachers may play an effective role in achieving sustainable development in our knowledge based society The most effective and stimulating teaching and learning happen in the organization when the knowledge and training are updated by aligning global issues This evaluates the best way of training the trainers and examines his her knowledge This will create expertise and skilled trainers for the students in the academic and for the trainees in the industry The aim was to study the trainer s growth customer s or student s consistent and positive feedback along with good retention and personal development of an employee in the organization or an institution
