The Institutionalised Transformation of the East German Economy Sabine Spangenberg, 2012-12-06 It is perhaps worth stressing that economic problems arise always and only in consequence of change So long as things continue as before or at least as they were expected to there arise no new problems requiring a decision no need to form a plan Hayek 1945 p 523 This book is based on my research for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy which I received from Lancaster University England in the second half of 1997 It is an analysis of the structural transformation of the economic system in East Germany and the behavioural relations these changes imply The approach of institutionalised transformation not the least by the creation of the Treuhandanstalt is examined with a theory based framework which is derived from system theoretical evolutionary and constitutional ethical considerations as well as from the newly developed adjustment model which has been constructed as a dynamic transformation approach A relationship between norm changes the new institutional framework of the economic system and the compatibility of the latter with changes of the remaining partial societal systems is recognised Rigidity factors in the system's flexibility to react as well as the adjustment of economic behaviour to structural changes are analysed The marginal product of system change is defined section 2.8.2 Democracy in Southern Europe Isabelle Calleja Ragonesi, 2019-02-28 How have Malta and Cyprus both EU members transitioned from colonial island states to independent democracies With the assistance of primary documentation this book traces the difficult path of these two states to becoming independent liberal democracies by using the pathway of democratization through decolonization Using socio economic and political data analysed through the microscope of political science and international relations theories Isabelle Calleja Ragonesi charts the progress of the two islands in the context of a number of four distinct phases Firstly decolonization independence and achieving the status of procedural democracies secondly post colonial independence consolidating democracy and regime breakdown thirdly sovereign nation state status and second attempts at consolidating democracy and finally attempting to reach substantive democracy status and EU membership The study of these two states is contextualized within the context of democratization in Southern Europe and the cases of Malta and Cyprus provide new insights on the region for scholars of political science and international institutions Development Strategies Reconsidered John John Prior Lewis, Valeriana Kallab, 1986 First rate comprehensive analysis presented in a manner that makes it extremely valuable to policymakers Robert N Nathan Robert Nathan Associates In this volume policy syntheses are proposed to reconcile the goals of growth equity and adjustment to strike fresh balances between agricultural and industrial promotion and between capital and other inputs and to reflect the interplay of democracy and development This volume includes contributions by John P Lewis Irma Adelman John W Mellor Jagdish N Bhagwati Leopoldo Solis Aurelio Montemayor Colin I Bradford Jr Alex Duncan and Atul Kohli Political Institutions in Europe Josep Colomer,2003-08-29 A clear accessible introduction to the institutional regimes of 15 countries in western Europe by an outstanding team of leading European political scientists Each chapter is devoted either to a single country or to a small group of countries allowing students to draw sophisticated comparisons of their political parties electoral systems and institutions of government at national regional and local level

International Studies in Sociology and Social Anthropology ,1991 Congress of Arts and Science Howard Jason Rogers,1906 Professionalism and Good Governance in Africa Francis Appiah,Donald P. Chimanikire,Thorvald Gran,2004 This book is about the process of professionalization and the practice of professionalism in African public administration It approaches the subject matter from theoretical and empirical vintage points the latter drawing on evidence from West and Southern Africa The Passing of Politics William Kay Wallace,1924 Constitutional Development in Bangladesh Dilara Choudhury,1995 Round-table Conferences of the Institute of Politics at Its ... Malik,1990 Democracy and Social Change in India Subrata Kumar Mitra,V. B. Singh,1999 The authors succeed in presenting very detailed findings from a post election study of the electorate using a theoretical approach that accounts for the most worrying phenomena in contemporary Indian politics John Hickman Contemporary South Asia Drawing on a 1996 nationwide post election survey of 10 000 people this book analyzes the process and progress of democratization in India It begins with a discussion of some of the major schools of thought in the area of social change This is followed by a description of the survey findings on how Indians view their state how they judge those who govern them and how they understand their society The authors provide an important analysis of the findings providing answers to questions such as are there generational differences in the views expressed does the rhetoric of regionalization find resonance in the views of the people surveyed is India truly a nation or merely an accidental geographical assemblage of separate communities Using innovative statistical analysis the authors explore the relative success of Indian democracy in coping with the processes of modernization and social change Religion, Nationalism, and Politics in Bangladesh Rafiuddin Ahmed,1990 Collection of articles chiefly on post 1971 politics in Bangladesh The Romance of the State Ashis Nandy,2003 The essays in this volume written as part of psychological biography of the Indian state explore the scope limits and fate of some key concepts in the mainstream culture of politics that have come to structure India's public life. These concepts constitute the dominant public ideology within the consciousness of the expanding middle classes in the country and they range from concrete concerns like secularism and development to more abstract ones such as dissent and history. The essays mostly inquire into the culture of the Indian state, suggest tangentially the directions in which to move for a cultural and psychological biography of the state. The idea of a moderate state, which was of a state that was neither overburdened with the responsibility of engineering all aspects of its citizens' lives nor of seeking to extend the market and global capital into every corner of every society, was not unknown to all societies at all times. While such moderate states may not have been great successes and may not have survived, neither can the modern nation-state system claim to be the greatest success story of all times. The question of its survival as an arrangement of political communities too remains to be finally decided. The essays in this book explore the vicissitudes of the idea of the modern state under different cultural and psychological conditions.
