functions and basic principles This work gives information about new approaches methods and algorithms based on original methodological technique developed by authors in their publications for the past several years as well as corresponding prospective implementations The book may be of interest to a wide range of readers such as civil engineering students traffic engineers developers of traffic assignment algorithms etc The obtained results here are to be used in both practice and theory This book is devoted to the traffic assignment problem formulated in a form of nonlinear optimization program The most efficient solution algorithms related to the problem are based on its structural features and practical meaning rather than on standard nonlinear optimization techniques or approaches The authors have carefully considered the meaning of the traffic assignment problem for efficient algorithms development Trends in the Development of Traffic Assignment Techniques Bent Andersen,1967 Traffic Assignment Thomas B. Solution Techniques for the Traffic Assignment Problem Stephen P. Bradley,CALIFORNIA UNIV BERKELEY OPERATIONS RESEARCH CENTER.,Institute of Transportation and Traffic Engineering,1965 The paper investigates the application of some large scale solution techniques to the so called traffic assignment problem or multicommodity flow problem As this is a network problem there are two equivalent formulations The first is based on the node arc incidence matrix and is the usual approach The second is based on an arc chain matrix and the formulation is an extension of Ford and Fulkerson s multi commodity work Decomposition techniques are applied to the first formulation and a minimum chain network approach applied to the second Then an extension of the arc chain formulation shows it is equivalent to decomposition theory being applied to a slightly different node arc formulation Author Empirical Testing of Traffic Assignment Techniques on Transportation Networks ,1988 Traffic assignment research ,1968
