

These drawings show that Baroque violins are a little larger and have a more rounded body than the modern violin.

Now use the oval pattern shown and use both large circles as guides for the center lines of neck and body of violin.

A violin body, showing the f-holes and scroll.

Violin body back.

The violin's "body" will have to be made to fit the proportions of your drawing. To make a "flat" one of the upper right hand, refer to the center of the body.

Remember to include the neck in making the body. It is not to be cut out until the body is finished. (See Fig. 10.)

Violin body side view.

When you have your body made, be sure to use the same proportions as shown in the drawing. The neck is not to be cut out until the body is finished. (See Fig. 10.)
