Women In Decision Making:

Women and Empowerment Marilee Karl,1995 The empowerment of women by their increased participation in all aspects of political social and economic life has become one of the major goals of democratic and participatory movements as well as women s organizations throughout the world This book examines the vital interaction of women s increasing participation decision making and empowerment Marilee Karl also examines the legal economic and social obstacles faced by women around the world She provides vivid examples of women responding to those challenges Beyond offering an understanding of what participation and empowerment are and can be this book seeks to promote women s participation whether at the grassroots or at national and international levels The book looks at the growing involvement of women in different organizations politics and public life development programmes and international decision making It outlines the strategies mechanisms and tools that women are using for their empowerment and explains new priorities and perspectives that women are bringing to today s key issues Women in decision-making ,1997 Women in Decision Making

Ranjana Kumari,1992 Under the auspices of Centre for Social Research Aspirations and women's empowerment: Evidence from Kyrgyzstan Kosec, Katrina,Song, Jie,2018-12-18 We find strong empirical evidence that raising aspirations is one route to empowering women Higher aspirations on the part of husbands predicts more egalitarian gender attitudes for both the husband and his wife However higher aspirations on the part of wives may be an even more important predictor of women s empowerment In particular higher aspirations on the part of wives predict both more egalitarian gender attitudes for both the husband and his wife as well as greater involvement of women in household decision making as agreed by both the wife and her husband Participation of Women in Decision-making-- Some Guidelines ,1980

Understanding Women's Empowerment Sunita Kishor,Lekha Subaiya,2008 This report examines the distribution and correlates of two different dimensions of the empowerment of currently married women age 15 49 in 23 developing countries P xv Women's Decision-Making Nancy W. Veeder,1992-07-30 Essential characteristics of women s decision making have long been ignored or if considered at all have been viewed in relationship to male based factors Veeder drawing on experiences of Irish women establishes that women making important choices do so differently than men The women ranging in age from as young as thirteen to over sixty five were divided into three age groupings thereby offering insights into variables over much of the life span Themes born from common experiences emerge from the poignant compelling accounts of individual women The author s analysis and commentary structure the book s development and maintain its focus on the context wherein women make their private but immensely important decisions the family Education vocation marriage and childbearing are considered relative to the thought and emotional factors that influenced the women s decisions Veeder concludes that women show strength and insight in their approach to choices She sees women in comparison with men as taking more factors into consideration being more aware of consequences being more practical flexible and valuing of relationships Women's participation in the workforce and their increased societal roles make this a most timely book It is too an important contribution to and stimulus for additional research on gender and decision making The Securitization of Migration and Refugee Women Alison Gerard,2014-05-16 Humanised accounts of restrictions on mobility are rarely the focus of debates on irregular migration Very little is heard from refugees themselves about why they migrate their experiences whilst entering the EU or how they navigate reception conditions upon arrival particularly from a gendered perspective The Securitization of Migration and Refugee Women fills this gap and explores the journey made by refugee women who have travelled from Somalia to the EU to seek asylum This book reveals the humanised impact of the securitization of migration the dominant policy response to irregular migration pursued by governments across the Globe The Southern EU Member State of Malta finds itself on the frontline of policing and securing Europe's southern external borders against transnational migrants and preventing migrants on migration to other Member States within the EU The securitization of migration has been responsible for restricting access to asylum diluting rights and entitlements to refugee protection and punishing those who arrive in the EU without valid passports a visibly racialised and gendered population The stories of the refugee women interviewed for this research detail the ways in which refugee protection is being eroded selectively applied and in some cases specifically designed to exclude In contrast to the majority of migration literature which has largely focused on the male experience this book focuses on the experiences of refugee women and aims to contribute to the volume of work dedicated to analysing borders from the perspective of those who cross them This research strengthens existing criminological literature and has the potential to offer insights to policy makers around the world It will be of interest to academics and students interested in International Crime and Justice Securitisation Refugee Law and Border Control as well as the general reader The First 1000 Days: Window of Opportunity for Child Health and Development Shoba Suri

,Giovanna Verlato,Subhasree Ray,2025-09-23 The first 1000 days of a child's life starting from conception until their second birthday are a critical period for their growth and development During this time the child's brain is developing rapidly and their body is growing at a remarkable pace Proper nutrition healthcare along with social and emotional support during this period can have a significant impact on the child's future health and well being The 1000 day window of opportunity is based on research that has shown malnutrition and other health problems during this period can have long lasting effects on the child's health and development For example malnutrition during this period can lead to stunted growth cognitive deficits and a weakened immune system These effects can have lasting consequences that can affect the child's health and well being into adulthood Therefore it is essential to provide children with proper nutrition health care and social and emotional support during this period This includes promoting breastfeeding providing a diverse and nutrient rich diet ensuring access to clean water and sanitation and providing appropriate health care including vaccinations and regular check ups Additionally creating a supportive and nurturing environment for the child including providing responsive caregiving and a safe and stimulating living environment can also have a positive impact on their development Investing in the health and well being of children during the first 1000 days of life is not only crucial for their future but also for the well being and development of communities and societies as a whole By prioritizing a child s health and development during this critical period we can set the foundation for a healthier more productive and equitable future for all

Women in Decision-making ,1999 Om kvinders deltagelse i forskellige beslutningsprocesser herunder politik og økonomi Journal of the National Cancer Institute ,1990 Women's empowerment, agricultural extension, and digitalization: Disentangling information and role model effects in rural Uganda Lecoutere, Els,Spielman, David J.,Van Campenhout, Bjorn, In many developing countries agricultural extension services are generally biased towards men with information targeted mainly to male members of a farming household and in formats that are rarely tailored to female members Nevertheless female farmers may also benefit from such services as this may affect their ability to make informed decisions resulting in increased farm productivity household income and welfare We conduct a gendered field experiment among maize farming households in eastern Uganda to test whether video enabled extension messaging affects outcomes related to maize cultivation In this experiment men women and couples are shown randomly assigned videos about improved maize management practices in which male female or both male and female actors are featured We first vary exposure to the videos by gender to test the effects of changes in intra household information asymmetries investigating whether involving women as recipients of information increases their ability to participate in household decision making and thus their involvement in household production choices We then vary exposure to the gender of the actors in the videos to test for role model effects exploring whether involving women as information messengers challenges the idea that decision making is a predominantly male domain in turn affecting women s outcomes Results show that targeting women with information increases their knowledge about improved maize management practices their role in agricultural decision making the adoption of recommended practices and inputs production related outcomes and the quantity of maize women sell to the market Results for the role model effects are mixed and are evident more in joint household outcomes than individual women s outcomes Overall our findings suggest that in the context of our study extension efforts aimed at directly addressing intra household information asymmetries may be a first best means of empowering women in agriculture Other more subtle means that seek to influence perceptions and norms about gendered roles in the household may not generate expected effects or work via expected impact pathways though they remain worth further exploration
