Cox,2004-04-30 Members of Congress often delegate power to bureaucratic experts but they fear losing permanent control of the policy One way Congress has dealt with this problem is to require reauthorization of the program or policy Cox argues that Congress uses this power selectively and is more likely to require reauthorization when policy is complex or they do not trust the executive branch By contrast reauthorization is less likely to be required when there are large disagreements about policy within Congress In the process Cox shows that committees are important independent actors in the legislative process and that committees with homogenous policy preferences may have an advantage in getting their bills through Congress Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications ,2004
