

THE ADOLESCENT MOLESTER

By
WILLIAM BREER, M.S.W.

Focusing on the teenage boy who sexually victimizes younger children, this book explores the long-identified distinction between being a victim and becoming an offender. The author—a psychoanalytically-oriented clinician—defines molestation and distinguishes it from rape and experimentation. He offers a formula for the classification of molestation acts which is designed to reflect the degree of sexual and psychological disturbance of the offender and the danger he poses to the community. Chapters cover the dynamic factors which drive some boys to molest, clinical assessment, group psychotherapy, other treatment modalities and issues, and sentencing and courtship/management. Many dreams, writings and drawings of offenders are included to illustrate important points.
